Prehistoric and Romano-British Settlement in the Solway Plain, Cumbria Robert Bewley, 1994 Prehistoric and Romano-British Settlement in the Solway Plain, Cumbria R. H. Bewley, University of Cambridge, 1984 An Atlas of Roman Rural Settlement in England Dr. Jeremy Taylor, 2007 Presents the major findings of a project focusing on the characterisation mapping and assessment of late prehistoric and Roman rural settlement This volume highlights directions for research in the discipline and provides a framework for utilisation of a crucial archaeological resource It is a useful reading for scholars of An Imperial Possession David Mattingly, 2008-05-27 Part of the Penguin History of Britain series An Imperial Possession is the first major narrative history of Roman Britain for a generation David Mattingly draws on a wealth of new findings and knowledge to cut through the myths and misunderstandings that so commonly surround our beliefs about this period From the rebellious chiefs and druids who led native British resistance to the experiences of the Roman military leaders in this remote dangerous outpost of Europe this book explores the reality of life in occupied Britain within the context Farming in the First Millennium AD P. J. Fowler, 2002-11-14 Peter of the shifting fortunes of the Roman Empire Fowler has written an authoritative account of farming in Britain in the first millennium AD This is the first synthesis of our knowledge on this topic for a generation Successive chapters assemble and analyse the latest evidence on farms fields technology food diet and society New interpretations are offered on subjects ranging from implements to illuminated manuscripts and evidence drawn from Northern England Scotland and Wales contributes significantly to the story The book concludes with a magisterial review of the ways in which agriculture shaped early Britain's societies and landscapes It also proposes a chronological model of British agriculture for the whole millennium Hadrian's Wall and the End of Empire Rob Collins, 2012 There is no synthetic or comprehensive treatment of any late Roman frontier in the English language to date despite the political and economic significance of the frontiers in the late antique period Examining Hadrian's Wall and the Roman frontier of northern England from the fourth century into the Early Medieval period this book investigates a late frontier in transition from an imperial border zone to incorporation into Anglo Saxon kingdoms using both archaeological and documentary evidence With an emphasis on the late Roman occupation and Roman military it places the frontier in the broader imperial context In contrast to other works Hadrian's Wall and the End of Empire challenges existing ideas of decline collapse and transformation in the Roman period as well as its impact on local frontier communities Author Rob Collins analyzes in detail the limitanei the frontier soldiers of the late empire essential for the successful maintenance of the frontiers and the relationship between imperial authorities and local frontier dynamics Finally the impact of the end of the Roman period in Britain is assessed as well as the influence that the frontier had on the development of the Anglian kingdom of Northumbria Neolithic Archaeology in the Intertidal Zone E. J. Sidell, F. Haughey, 2007-10-16 This volume is based upon a conference which took place in 1999 reflecting the developing interest in intertidal archaeology and concentrating on the Neolithic period as well as elements of associated Mesolithic and Bronze Age archaeology Since then the papers have been revised to include new discoveries and reflect the increasing interest and importance attached to the intertidal zone All papers have supporting environmental data and radiocarbon dates The volume has a wide geographical spread and details the work of archaeologists working in fragile and rapidly eroding environments is evaluated the papers demonstrate the high quality research being undertaken around the British coast to salvage archaeology by record and undertake detailed research to place it in its proper context

Hunters in Transition Marek Zvelebil, 2009-06-18 Hunters in Transition analyses the emergence of post glacial hunter gatherer communities and the development of farming The Lowland Wetlands of Cumbria David Hodgkinson, 2000 This volume details the results of archaeological and palaeoecological survey carried out in Cumbria between 1991 and 1997 as part of the North West Wetlands Survey Divided geographically the sections focus on southern Cumbria the western coastal plain and north plains discussing the background aims and methodology of the project The results of the survey highlight the long sequences of pollen and plant macrofossils that are preserved in Cumbria some dating back to the Holocene Having identified important areas the authors focus on current threats to these areas why these areas are in danger and possible Transactions of the Cumberland & Westmoreland Antiguarian & Archeological management strategies for the future Society Cumberland and Westmorland Antiguarian and Archæological Society, 2007 Barely Surviving or More than Enough? Maaike Groot, Daphne Lentjes, Jørn Zeiler, 2013-10-14 How people produced or acquired their food in the past is one of the main questions in archaeology Everyone needs food to survive so the ways in which people managed to acquire it forms the very basis of human existence Farming was key to the rise of human sedentarism Once farming moved beyond subsistence and regularly produced a surplus it supported the development of specialisation speeded up the development of socio economic as well as social complexity the rise of towns and the development of city states In short studying food production is of critical importance in understanding how societies developed Environmental archaeology often studies the direct remains of food or food processing and is therefore well suited to address this topic What is more a wealth of new data has become available in this field of research in recent years This allows synthesising research with a regional and diachronic approach Indeed most of the papers in this volume offer studies on subsistence and surplus production with a wide geographical perspective The research areas vary considerably ranging from the American Mid South to Turkey The range in time periods is just as wide from c 7000 BC to the 16th century AD Topics covered include foraging strategies the combination of domestic and wild food resources in the Neolithic water supply crop specialisation the effect of the Roman occupation on animal husbandry town country relationships and the monastic economy With this collection of papers and the theoretical framework presented in the introductory chapter we wish to demonstrate that the topic of subsistence and surplus production remains of interest and promises to generate more exciting research in the future McCarthy, 2017-07-20 Carlisle charts the city's emergence as an urban centre under the Romans and traces its vicissitudes over subsequent centuries until the high Middle Ages Arguably the most important theme that differentiates its development from many other towns is its position as a border city The characteristics of the landscape surrounding Carlisle gave it special significance as a front line element in the defence of the Roman province of Britannia and later at the frontier of two emerging kingdoms England and Scotland In both cases it occupied the only overland route in the west between these two kingdoms emphasising the importance of understanding its landscape setting This volume sheds light on the processes of urbanization under the Romans beginning with a fort developing into a major nodal hub and ending as the capital city of the local tribe the Carvetii The story continues with the collapse of Roman rule and the city's re emergence first as a monastic centre then as a proto town in the period of Anglo Scandinavian settlement Finally the Norman Conquest confirmed Carlisle's importance with the establishment of a castle a diocese and an Augustinian Priory as well as the granting of specific rights to the citizens Carlisle uses a combination of archaeological discoveries and historical data to explore the history and legacy of Landscapes Through the Lens David C. Cowley, Robin A. Standring, Matthew J. Abicht, 2010-11-11 this fascinating city This volume presents the rich but under utilised and in parts inaccessible archival historic aerial imagery traditional photographs and those captured from satellites for the exploration and management of cultural heritage An unparalleled resource for archaeologists and all with an interest in landscapes images spanning the second half of the 20th century provide an unrivalled means of documenting and understanding change and informing the study of the past Case studies written by leading experts in their fields illustrate the applications of this imagery across a wide range of heritage issues from prehistoric cultivation and settlement patterns to the impact of recent landscape change Contemporary environmental and land use issues are also dealt with in a volume that will be of interest to archaeologists historians geographers and those Roman and Medieval Carlisle Michael Robin McCarthy, 2000 in related disciplines The Farming of Prehistoric Britain P. Susan Alcock, John Cherry, 2016-10-02 Twenty years ago John Cherry looked forward to the day when archaeological survey projects working around the Mediterranean region the Frogs round the pond would begin to compare and synthesize the information they had collected He anticipated researchers tackling big questions of interregional scope in new and interesting ways working at a geographical scale considerably larger than that of the individual survey Was his optimism misplaced Despite the extraordinary growth of interest in field survey projects and regional analysis and despite the developments in survey methodology that have been discussed and implemented in the past two decades few scholars have attempted to use survey data in a comparative mode and to answer the broad scale questions confronting social historians In this volume which is the outcome of an advanced Workshop held at the University of Michigan in 2002 a number of prominent archaeologists return to the question of comparability They discuss the potential benefits of working in a comparative format with evidence from many different Mediterranean survey projects and consider the practical problems that present roadblocks to achieving that objective From mapping and manuring to human settlement and demography environment and culture each addresses different questions often with quite different approaches together they offer a range of perspectives on how to put surveys side by side Contributors include Susan E Alcock John Cherry Jack L Davis Peter Attema Martijn van Leusen James C Wright Robin Osborne David Mattingly T J Wilkinson and Richard E Blanton
