Great Britain. Parliament. Joint Committee on Human Rights,2009 The report opens with an affirmation that the British Government should protect the right to protest peacefully It then discusses some concerns about policing of protest which could be addressed by legal and operational changes 1 Reference to insulting words or behaviour should be removed from section 5 of the Public Order Act This change would allow the police to arrest people for using threatening or abusive language or behaviour but not for using insulting language or behaviour 2 Counter terrorism powers should never be used against peaceful protestors the Government s guidance on stop and search powers in Section 44 of the Terrorism Act 2000 should make this clear 3 The Government should protect the right to freedom of peaceful assembly around Parliament by repealing the Serious Organised Crime and Police Act 2005 Protest around Parliament should be governed by the Public Order Act 1986 which should be amended to deal with the specific circumstances of Parliament 4 police and protestors need to focus on improving dialogue The police should aim for no surprises policing no surprises for the police no surprises for protestors and no surprises for protest targets Protestors should also where possible engage with the police at an early stage in their planning in order to facilitate peaceful protest Tasers should never be used against peaceful protestors CTS and Right-Wing Terrorism and Counterterrorism Alice Martini,Raquel da Silva,2023-08-22 This volume is a timely contribution to the current debates and potential efforts to study and counter the phenomena of extreme right violence in a period when the rise of right wing extremism is being witnessed across the globe Against this backdrop the violent radicalisation and extremism of individuals and groups belonging to the extreme right threaten to undermine and destabilize societies and democratic orders leaving a research gap that has only started to be filled in recent years but that is still quite wide when it comes to counter terrorism approaches to extreme right violence Learning from the past and trying to avoid similar mistakes this volume creates a much needed space for open honest and ethical debate around countering extreme right violence answering social and political calls to debate how to counter this kind of violence This volume brings together a group of interdisciplinary scholars to contribute to national and international academic and policy debates about countering extreme right violence from a critical perspective Volume II focuses particularly on exploring how extreme right violence has been approached in different spatial and temporal contexts examining how the criminal justice system has dealt with the threat of and actual violence perpetrated by the extreme right deconstructing current counter terrorism approaches from feminist and gender perspectives and formulating a critical approach to countering extreme right violence It will be of great interest to all students of terrorism studies security studies international relations and political science in general The chapters in this book were originally published in Critical Studies on Terrorism ECSM2015-Proceedings of the 2nd European Conference on Social Media 2015 Dr Paula Peres, Dr Anabela Mesquita, 2015-07-06 Complete proceedings of the 2nd European Conference on Social Media Porto Portugal Published by Academic Conferences and Publishing International Limited Federal Efforts to Coordinate and Prepare the United States for Bioterrorism United States.
