Preparing for Drought Donald A Wilhite,1994 Describes those unique characteristics of drought that set it apart from other natural hazards Also describes the nature of impacts associated with drought Illustrates with several case studies how some nations have coped with drought in the past and describes recent attempts to adopt a more proactive risk management approach Also proposes a methodology to assist developing countries in the preparation of drought plans Preparing for

Drought Donald A. Wilhite,1992 Guidebook for Preparing Water Conservation Plans ,1993 The Arid Frontier Hendrik J. Bruins,Harvey Lithwick,2012-12-06 The arid frontier has been a challenge for humanity from time immemorial Drylands cover more than one third of the global land surface distributed over Africa Asia Australia America and Southern Europe Disasters may develop as a result of complex interactions between drought desertification and society Therefore proactive planning and interactive management including disaster coping strategies are essential in dealing with arid frontier development This book presents a conceptual framework with case studies in dryland development and management The option of a rational and ethical discourse for development that is beneficial for both the environment and society is emphasized avoiding extreme environmentalism and human destructionism combating both desertification and human livelihood insecurity Such development has to be based on appropriate ethics legislation policy proactive planning and interactive management Excellent scholars address these issues focusing on the principal interactions between people and dryland environments in terms of drought food land water renewable energy and housing Audience This volume will be of great value to all those interested in Dryland Development and Management professionals and policy makers in governmental international and non governmental organizations NGOs as well as researchers lecturers and students in Geography Environmental Management Regional Studies Development Anthropology Hazard and Disaster Management Agriculture and Pastoralism Land and Water Use African Studies and Renewable Energy Resources Geospatial Technologies for Land Degradation Assessment and Management R. S. Dwivedi,2018-10-17 The constant growth of the world's population and the decline of the availability of land and soil resources are global concerns for food security Other concerns are the decrease in productivity and delivery of essential ecosystems services because of the decline of soil quality and health by a range of degradation processes Key soil properties like soil bulk density organic carbon concentration plant available water capacity infiltration rate air porosity at field moisture capacity and nutrient reserves are crucial properties for soil functionality which refers to the capacity of soil to perform numerous functions These functions are difficult to measure directly and are estimated through indices of soil quality and soil health Soil degradation its extent and severity can also be estimated by assessing indices of soil quality and health Geospatial Technology for Land Degradation Assessment and Management uses satellite imagery and remote sensing technologies to measure landscape parameters and terrain attributes Remote sensing and geospatial technologies are important tools in assessing the extent and the severity of land and soil degradation their temporal changes and geospatial distribution in a timely and cost effective manner The knowledge presented in the book by Dr R S Dwivedi shows how remote sensing data can be utilized for inventorying assessing and monitoring affected ecosystems and how this information can be integrated in the models of different local settings Through many land degradations studies land managers researchers and policymakers will find practical applications of geospatial technologies and future challenges The information presented is also relevant to advancing the Sustainable Development Goals of the United Nations towards global food security
