Mapping Spatial PPs Guglielmo Cinque,Luigi Rizzi,2010 This volume focuses on the internal structure of prepositional phrases an area that has so far received little attention from the standpoint of cartography Despite the wide range of data and considerations presented in these essays the contributors reach a strikingly convergent conclusion that phrases composed of spatial prepositions adverbs and particles do not have different structures but merely spell out different parts of the same articulated configuration

The Message of Isaiah 40-55 John Goldingay,2005-12-27 The Message of Isaiah 40 55 traces the argument of Isaiah 40 55 to show how the chapters bring a message of encouragement and challenge about God's intention to restore the Judean community some of whose members are in exile in Babylon others living in the city of Jerusalem that has lain devastated since it fell to the Babylonians in 587 The chapters hold before this community's eyes a vision of the nature of its God as the powerful creator and the loving restorer In the course of following the argument the reader becomes aware that the chapters have to deal with their audience's mysterious resistance to their message It cannot give God the kind of response the message needs and deserves nor can it fulfil the role as God's servant that is designed for it God nevertheless remains committed to it The prophet eventually becomes aware of a distinctive personal calling to embody that response until the people are ready to do so It is the prophet's willingness to do this notwithstanding the suffering it brings that embodies the kind of ministry that needs to be exercised to them so that they may be brought back to God and find a restoration of spirit as well as a physical restoration

Reviews and book notices Issues in the Study of Pidgin and Creole Languages Claire Lefebvre, 2004-01-01 The content of this book is concerned with various issues at stake in Creole studies that are also of interest for general linguistics. These include the general issue of Creole genesis and of the accelerated linguistic change that characterizes the emergence of these languages as compared to ordinary cases of linguistic change, the problem of the development of morphology in incipient Creoles, the problem of the validity of data in linguistic analysis, the issue of multifunctionality as regards the concept of lexical entry, the question of whether Creole languages are semantically more transparent than languages not known as Creoles, the issue of whether Creole languages constitute a typologically identifiable class and the problem of the interaction between the processes involved in the emergence and development of Creole languages. The purpose of this book is to present the major debates that are currently taking place in the field of Creole studies, evaluate the arguments against data mainly drawn from Haitian Creole and address the issues at stake within the framework of new paradigms. The various positions on each issue are summarized on the basis of a thorough review of the literature.

A Grammar of Madurese William D. Davies, 2010-08-31 Madurese is a major regional language of Indonesia with some 14 million speakers mainly on the island of Madura and adjacent parts of Java, making it the fourth largest language of Indonesia after Indonesian, Javanese and Sundanese. There is no existing comprehensive descriptive grammar of the language, with existing studies being either sketches of the whole grammar or detailed descriptions of phonology and morphology or some particular topics within these components of the grammar. There is no competing work that provides the breadth and depth of coverage of this grammar in particular, though not exclusively with regard to syntax.
