Handbook of Family Violence Alan S. Bellack, Michel Hersen, R.L. Morrison, Vincent B. Van Hasselt, 2013-06-29 In the last decade there has been heightened clinical and investigative activity in the area of family violence This of course is partly attributable to recent surveys showing a high incidence of family violence in the United States For example there are indications that nearly 30% of married women in this country are victims of physical abuse by spouses at some point in their marriage Further FBI statistics show that approximately 13% of all homicides are husband wife killings Moreover it has been projected that such figures are likely to increase over the next several years Consistent with these trends funding of family violence research by both federal and private agencies has increased Indeed federal agencies such as the National Institute of Mental Health and the National Institute of Law Enforcement and Criminal Justice have provided considerable support for work in this area In addition family violence particularly wifebattering child abuse and sexual abuse of children has been the focus of media attention at the national level and has generated intensive interest in both lay and professional publications Moreover there have been several recent governmental hearings and investigations regarding the prevalence of these problems Resources in Education, 1998 Social Work with Children and Families Martin Brett Davies, 2012-03-20 Social workers are constantly making decisions under pressure How do policy law research and theory influence what they do This important book provides the answers with a crystal clear map of the field of social work with children and families Focused on four major themes family support work child protection adoption and fostering and residential child care and reveals in detail all the challenges that social workers face every day Edited by the highly respected Martin Davies this authoritative and illuminating book argues that the skill of the social worker can have life enhancing consequences for some of the most vulnerable people in society It is an essential investment for students educators and practitioners alike Federal Register, 1979-05 Reauthorization of the Child Abuse Prevention and Treatment Act United States. Abuse and Violence Towards Young Children Roy Evans, 2017-10-02 Levels of violence abuse and neglect in early childhood are reported internationally as having reached epidemic proportions The prevalence of all forms of violence to children has been difficult to establish particularly in low and middle income countries However even in countries with a high GDP the sexual abuse of children and young people by predatory adults may continue undetected for decades In parts of Africa young children are mutilated and killed for religious reasons Physical beatings that injure and break bones are still common in the Western world Pornography and sexual abuse involving young children is propagated worldwide through the internet The prevention of this violence will require substantial shifts in parental and public attitudes to children and the development and support of national systems of preventive legislation The last 20 years has seen the emergence of a body of material which interrogates early childhood violence and neglect in a wider range of global settings particularly those countries with a low GDP This book aims to highlight important features of national and international initiatives which are rooted in findings from systematic research The continued abuse and neglect of children has been attributed to social acceptance not understanding the importance of reporting abuse and the limitations of child welfare systems This book will be of interest to practitioners in health care education and social work services as well as field workers implementing programmes to address all forms of abuse at family community and national level This book was originally published as a special issue of Early Child Development and Care

Preventing Violence Against Women and Children Institute of Medicine, Board on Global Health, Forum on Global Violence Prevention, 2011-10-12 Violence against women and children is a serious public health concern with costs at multiple levels of society Although violence is a threat to everyone women and children are particularly susceptible to victimization because they often have fewer rights or lack appropriate means of protection In some societies certain types of violence are deemed socially or legally acceptable thereby contributing further to the risk to women and children In the past decade research has documented the growing magnitude of such violence but gaps in the data still remain Victims of violence of any type fear stigmatization or societal condemnation and thus often hesitate to report crimes The issue is compounded by the fact that for women and children the perpetrators are often people they know and because some countries lack laws or regulations protecting victims Some of the data that have been collected suggest that rates of violence against women range from 15 to 71 percent in some countries and that rates of violence against children top 80 percent These data demonstrate that violence poses a high burden on global health and that violence against women and children is common and universal Preventing Violence Against Women and Children focuses on these elements of the cycle as they relate to interrupting this transmission of violence Intervention strategies include preventing violence before it starts as well as preventing recurrence preventing adverse effects such as trauma or the consequences of trauma and preventing the spread of violence to the next generation or social level Successful strategies consider the context of the violence such as family school community national or regional settings in order to determine the best programs
