Lubenow, 2024 Examines the entanglement of secularity and liberality in the foundation of the modern state in Britain Modern Britain emerged from the outcome of the French Revolution and the Napoleonic Wars The rather standard Whig account of the long nineteenth century is one of growing stability progress and improvement And yet nothing was preordained or inevitable about the period s stability Ruling elites felt the constant anxieties of revolutionary terrorism As Lubenow argues it was a period of disorganization seeking organization The great nineteenth century reform acts against religious monopoly were aspects of this process of political organization While religion did not disappear these political actions gradually changed the constitutional position of religion As a result a political vacuum was created which was then filled by a secular clerisy These fit and proper persons educated in the reformed universities qualified by success in competitive examinations began to fill positions in the Civil Service and in the professions The effect was to replace the eighteenth century system of confessional loyalties with a liberal political culture based on merit Lubenow s latest study examines the work of these intertwining nineteenth century secular liberal processes Steeped deeply in archival research this book considers biographical characteristics such as education political connections and social associations but it is equally conceptually guided by categories such as liberalism and secularism It fills an important gap in the political history of nineteenth century British liberalism by taking up the question of entanglement of secularity and liberality in the foundation of the modern state
