There are four subgenus and a total of 16 species, mostly under 20 cm high with round, flat, thin, green and glaucous leaves much longer than broad. The flowers are 2-5 cm across, bell-shaped or the lobes of the petals are reflexed, often have white streaks along the middle of the distance between the margin and the lateral axis. Small flowers could be 1-2 cm in diameter. Flowers have 5-7 stamens. 2-3 natural inflorescence (raceme) have 1-4 flowers. The ovary is globose, has long slender style with 3-5 lobes. The fruit is globose, greenish yellow, 1-2 cm in diameter, containing 1-2 seeds.

There are two widespread theories of how the immune system responds to stress. One theory says that stress helps stimulate it, whereas having a relatively stress-free lifestyle is linked with weaker immune response. However, both of these theories are based on a lot of speculation, and there is no clear evidence to support either.

Common sense is not a thing that is lost or kept. It is a quality that is either present or absent. It is not a matter of degree. It is not a matter of how much or how little. It is a matter of whether or not it is there. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to see the world as it is, without the distortions of emotion, prejudice, or self-interest. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to think clearly and logically, without the influence of passion or bias. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to make decisions based on reason and facts, rather than on feelings or opinions. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to understand the world as it is, rather than as you wish it to be. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to see the truth, even when it is inconvenient or uncomfortable. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to stand up for what is right, even when it is unpopular or unpopular. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to live your life with integrity and honesty, without the need for excuses or justifications. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good person, without the need for rewards or punishments. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good citizen, without the need for laws or regulations. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good neighbor, without the need for neighbors. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good friend, without the need for friends. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good parent, without the need for children. It is a matter of whether or not you are able to be a good spouse, without the need for a spouse. Creating a Small Nature Reserve and Relating its Story to Wider Conservation Issues Norman W. Moore,2021-10-25

This is a very personal account of the author's experiences in the field of conservation. The book is divided into two distinct but related parts. In the first he describes how some 40 years ago he acquired a bare field adjacent to his home in Cambridgeshire and transformed part of it into a private nature reserve with a wood, a large pond and rough grassland. He details his successes in trying to attract the wildlife which has subsequently colonized it as well as his failures. In his words many people wish to encourage wildlife on their land but do not know exactly what to do or what they can expect to achieve. In the second part he relates his own local experiences to the wider conservation scene. Most people are still unaware of the fundamental importance of wildlife or its connection with our own survival and they are also unaware of the urgency of the measures our generation can and must take. He considers how the failures of democratic governments to carry out crucial long term measures might be overcome. The author's aims are to encourage farmers and owners of large gardens to create nature reserves by describing the pleasures which flow from such a project as well as to stimulate debate on conservation policy and on the role of governments nationally and internationally in furthering the conservation of our own species as well as that of wildlife, currently a red hot topic. The British National Bibliography Arthur James Wells,1968 BBC Wildlife
