States found their jobs not only proves it's not what you know but who you know but also demonstrates how social activity influences labor markets. Examining the link between job contacts and social structure, Granovetter recognizes networking as the crucial link between economists' studies of labor mobility and more focused studies of an individual's motivation to find work. This second edition is updated with a new Afterword and includes Granovetter's influential article "Economic Action and Social Structure: The Problems of Embeddedness." Who would imagine that a book with such a prosaic title as getting a job could pose such provocative questions about social structure and even social policy? In a remarkably ingenious and deceptively simple analysis of data gathered from a carefully designed sample of professional, technical, and managerial employees, Granovetter manages to raise a number of critical issues for the economic theory of labor markets as well as for theories of social structure by exploiting the emerging social network perspective. Edward O. Laumann, American Journal of Sociology. This short volume has much to offer readers of many disciplines. Granovetter demonstrates ingenuity in his design and collection of data. Jacob Siegel, Monthly Labor Review. A fascinating exploration for Granovetter's principal interest lies in utilizing sociological theory and method to ascertain the nature of the linkages through which labor market information is transmitted by friends and relatives. Herbert Parnes, Industrial and Labor Relations Review. The Myspace.com

Giacinti, 2017-02-10. Searching for Paradise is a novel that has been inspired by the thinking of Eduardo Galeano. Our courage is born of our fears and our certainties of our doubts. Dreams point to another possible reality, madness to another kind of reason. We discover things in the place or places where we become lost; one has to become lost to find her or himself again. It is a story about the creation of large biotechnology plants in Mexico and about Eva, a young single woman from a provincial town who manages to become the owner of such a business. She searches for love from her partner, the father of two of her children. She is forced to suffer because of the nasty behavior and selfishness of what is supposed to be her family, also because of an opportunistic society. Eva founds in the small city of Aguacalera the first plant of its type with its research labs and creation of patents. It becomes the first Mexican business to become registered in 50 years. During her earlier years, Eva turns to one of her uncles who has an export assembly plant There she learns about entrepreneurship Nevertheless clothing plants like all Mexican export products plants begin to feel the effects of investors going to China after they stop investing in Mexican business ventures Eva finds that she is forced to work as an employee at one of her uncles plants and later on at her fathers construction company Five years later when she is only 21 and divorced and has a three year old son she meets the man who will become her partner Juan Blanco and falls in love with him The birth of a new business era and a love story between two people from different social classes makes Searching for Paradise a great classic
