Robots Paolo Arena, Luca Patanè, 2008-12-19 The basic principles guiding sensing perception and action in bio systems seem to rely on highly organised spatial temporal dynamics In fact all biological senses visual hearing tactile etc process signals coming from different parts distributed in space and also show a complex time evolution As an example mammalian retina performs a parallel representation of the visual world embodied into layers each of which represents a particular detail of the scene. These results clearly state that visual perception starts at the level of the retina and is not related uniquely to the higher brain centres. Although vision remains the most useful sense guiding usual actions, the other senses, first of all hearing but also touch, become essential particularly in cluttered conditions where visual percepts are somehow obscured by environment conditions. Efficient use of hearing can be learnt from acoustic perception in animals: insects like crickets that use this ancient sense more than all the others to perform a vital function like mating.
