Gender Justice and the

Law Elaine Wood, 2020-11-16 Gender Justice and the Law presents a collection of essays that examines how gender as a category of identity must continually be understood in relation to how structures of inequality define and shape its meaning. It asks how notions of justice shape gender identity and whether the legal justice system itself privileges notions of gender or is itself gendered. Shaped by politics and policy, Gender Justice essays contribute to understanding how theoretical practices of intersectionality relate to structures of inequality and relations formed as a result of their interaction. Given its theme, the collection's essays examine theoretical practices of intersectional identity at the nexus of gender and justice that might also relate to issues of sexuality, race, class, age, and ability.

Innocent Subjects Terese Jonsson, 2020-12-20 In a time of intensified global white supremacist and patriarchal violence, anti-racist feminist movements and analyses have never been more vital. Women of colour are at the forefront of these struggles worldwide but are white feminists really by their side? Despite a rich history of Black and postcolonial critiques of racist and imperial feminist politics, racism still exists within contemporary British feminism. To explain why Terese Jonsson examines the history of feminism over the last forty years, she argues that Black feminism's role in shaping the movement has been marginalised through narratives which repeatedly position white women at the centre of the story from the women's liberation movement in the 1970s to today. Analysing the ways in which whiteness continues to pervade feminist literature as well as feminist debates in the liberal media, Jonsson demonstrates that despite an increased attention to race intersectionality and difference, stories told by white feminists are shaped by their desire to maintain an innocent position towards racism.

Interrogating Models of Diversity within a Multicultural Environment Michael Tonderai Kariwo, Neda Asadi, Chouaib El Bouhali, 2019-05-28 Discussing common understanding of the concepts of multiculturalism, diversity, and inclusion, this volume critically examines the interpretation and praxis of diversity and inclusion in relation to marginalized populations from women, sexual minorities, minority newcomers, and aboriginal communities. The contributors collected here present well-grounded epistemological, theoretical, and methodological bases from which to account at least in part for the processes and dynamics shaping the relationship between diversity and inclusion on the one hand and policy and practice on the other. Arising from research derived in part from community work with minorities in North America, particularly Canada, this volume examines common barriers to full minority integration with important implications for inclusion efforts around the globe.
