crowning achievement of creation animals with their defective souls related to humans only as reminders of the brutish physical form. However, the second strand relied upon the idea of a continuum of animal life which enabled comparisons between animals and humans. This second tendency explains Miller arises particularly in early Christian literature in which ascetic identity, the body and ethics intersect. She explores the tension between these modes by tracing the image of the animal in early Christian literature from the ethical animal behavior on display in Basil of Caesarea's Hexaemeron and the anonymous Physiologus to the role of animals in articulating erotic desire and from the idyllic intimacy of monks and animals in literature of desert ascetism to early Christian art that envisions paradise through human-animal symbiosis.

Animal Visions Susan Mary Pyke, 2019-03-15. Animal Visions considers how literature responds to the harms of anthropocentrism, working with Emily Brontë's Wuthering Heights (1847) and various adaptations of this canonical novel to show how posthumanist dream writing unsettles the privileging of the human species over other species. Two feminist and post-Freudian responses: Kathy Acker's poem Obsession (1992) and Anne Carson's The Glass Essay (1997) most strongly extend Brontë's dream writing in this direction. Building on the trope of a ludic Cathy ghost who refuses the containment of logic and reason, these and other adaptations offer the gift of a radical peri-hysteria. This emotional excess is most clearly seen in Kate Bush's music video Wuthering Heights (1978) and Peter Kosminsky's film Wuthering Heights (1992). Such disturbances make space for a moor love that is particularly evident in Jane Urquhart's novel Changing Heaven (1989) and to a lesser extent Sylvia Plath's poem Wuthering Heights (1961). Brontë's Wuthering Heights and its most productive afterings make space for co-affective relations between humans and other animal beings. Andrea Arnold's film Wuthering Heights (2011) and Luis Buñuel's Abismos de Pasi (1954) also highlight the rupturing split gaze of non-acting animals in their films. In all of these works, depictions of intra-active and entangled responses between animals show the potential for dynamic and generative multispecies relations where the human is one animal amongst the kin of the world Ezra Jack Keats Literature Activities--Pet Show!
