Women's Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Twentieth-Century China Li Guo, 2015-07-15 In Women's Tanci Fiction in Late Imperial and Early Modern China Li Guo presents the first book length study in English of women's tanci fiction the distinctive Chinese form of narrative written in rhymed lines during the late imperial to early modern period related to but different from the orally performed version also called tanci She explores the tradition through a comparative analysis of five seminal texts Guo argues that Chinese women writers of the period position the personal within the diegesis in order to reconfigure their moral commitments and personal desires By fashioning a feminine representation of subjectivity tanci writers found a habitable space of self expression in the male dominated literary tradition Through her discussion of the emergence evolution and impact of women's tanci Guo shows how historical forces acting on the formation of the genre serve as the background for an investigation of cross dressing self portraiture and authorial self representation Further Guo approaches anew the concept of woman oriented perspective and argues that this perspective conceptualizes a narrative framework in which the heroine's are endowed with mobility to exercise their talent and power as social beings as men's equals Such a woman oriented perspective redefines normalized gender roles with an eye to exposing women's potentialities to transform historical and social customs in order to engender a world with better prospects for women

Gender and Education in China Paul J.

Bailey, 2007-02-12 Gender and Education in China analyzes the significance impact and nature of women's public education in China from its beginnings at the turn of the twentieth century. Educational change was an integral aspect of the early twentieth century state building and modernizing reforms implemented by the Qing dynasty as a means of strengthening the foundations of dynastic rule and reinvigorating China's economy and society to ward off the threat of foreign imperialism. A significant feature of educational change during this period was the emergence of official and non-official schools for girls. Using primary evidence such as official documents, newspapers, and journals, Paul Bailey analyzes the different rationales for women's education provided by officials, educators, and reformers and charts the course and practice of women's education, describing how young women responded to the educational opportunities made available to them. Demonstrating how the representation of women and assumptions concerning their role in the household society and polity underpinned subsequent gender discourses throughout the rest of the century, Gender and Education in China will appeal to students and scholars of Chinese history, gender studies, women's studies, as well as an interest in the history of education.

It is an attempt to explore overt and covert information on Chinese women in a vast quantity of textual and nontextual, conventional and unconventional source materials. This book is a valuable product witnessing the concerted effort of twenty-some scholars located in different parts of the world.

The Beijing Young Women's Christian Association, 1927-1937 Aihua Zhang, 2021-11-16 By exploring the interplay among gender, religion, and modernity, this book exposes the part Chinese Christian women played in China's quest for a strong nation in general and in Republican Beijing's modern transformation in particular. Focusing on the Beijing Young Women's Christian Association (YWCA), the author examines how the Association, guided by the Christian tenet to serve not to be served, tailored its Western models and devised new programs to meet the city's demands. Its enterprises ranged from providing women and child-oriented facilities to promoting constructive recreational activities and from reforming home and family to improving public health. Through an analysis of these endeavors, the author argues that the Chinese YW women's contribution to the city's modernity was a creative embodiment of the then socially targeted missionary movement known as the Social Gospel. In the process, they demonstrated their distinctive new ideals of womanhood, featuring practicality, social service and broad cooperation These qualities set them apart from both traditional women and other brands of the New Woman While criticized as trivial their efforts however pioneered modern social service in China and complemented what municipal authorities and other progressive groups undertook to modernize the city Women in Republican China: A Sourcebook Hua R. Lan, Vanessa L. Fong, 2015-08-12 Exploring one of the most dynamic and contested regions of the world this series includes works on political economic cultural and social changes in modern and contemporary Asia and the Pacific
