The Prehistoric Settlement of Britain Richard Bradley, 2014-10-24 This study first published in 1978 explores the evidence for pre Roman settlement in Britain Four aspects of the prehistoric economy are described by the author colonisation and clearance arable and pastoral farming transhumance and nomadism and hunting gathering and fishing These aspects have been brought together to formulate a structure which contains the evidence more naturally than chronological schemes that depend on assumed changes in population or technology The book draws upon environmental evidence and recent developments in archaeological fieldwork It also provides an extensive exploration of the published literature on the subject and the scope of the evidence Originally conceived as an ideas book rather than a final synthesis the author's intention throughout is to stimulate argument and research and not to replace one dogma with another An

Raymond,2014-06-15 The Wessex Linear Ditches Project focuses on the region forming the heart of the Wessex chalklands preserved by its location within a modern military training area The report comprises three parts a description of the archaeology of the project an innovative analysis of the finds and environmental data and a summary of the linear ditches and their context in late prehistory with management approaches to their present day preservation Our understanding of such prominent but enigmatic features as linear ditches has advanced little in recent years the work of the Wessex Linear Ditches Project represents a fresh approach to their interpretation The data from the specialist studies both environmental and artefactual are regarded not just as independent subjects but integrated aspects of the material culture associated with the development of the linear ditches system These integrated studies have led to the identification of a number of spatial and chronological themes The linear ditches system was developed through different stages its function changing through time Likewise the character and perception of the landscape changed with regard to demography settlement and cultural interaction This in turn affected subsistence productivity land ownership and the scale of domestic production Shifts in the balance of these elements were at the root of the changes identified As the conservation debate on the military estate is delicately poised the final examination of the management issues is especially important A History of England, Volume

Lake Chad: Life in archaeology 1956-1971 Graham Connah,2019-01-31 Graham Connah s autobiography offers both a professional and personal account that traces his archaeological training and employment at Cambridge and his practical experience on British excavations and explains how he became one of the pioneers of Nigerian archaeology during a decade in that country Ancient Monuments in the Countryside Timothy Darvill,2014-02-15 Much of England s rich archaeological heritage lies in the countryside Many monuments such as barrows hillforts and Roman villas are familiar features fo the landscape while other sites lie buried or only partly visible These remains are the result of the impact on the landscape of the countless generations of people who have lived worked and died within it The cumulative effect is the landscape we know today in which the historical dimension is an integral component of the valued whole and an important part of what most people in England are increasingly concerned to see protected and conserved The archaeological heritage however is a finite and fragile resource and much of it has been lost in the last two decades as a result of increasing pressures on farming industry and commerce to maximise the return on investment in the land The conservation of what remains therefore needs to be given urgent consideration This report has three main goals First it aims to present the background to the recognition investigation and management of the archaeological resource Second it attempts to review what is known of the resource the threats currently posed to it and the ways in which it can be exploited and conserved Finally it looks towards the development and promotion of a secure future for ancient monuments in the countryside The Agrarian History of England and Wales: Volume 1, Prehistory to AD 1042 Stuart Piggott, Joan Thirsk, 2011-04-28 This volume surveys the evolution of the man made landscape in Britain over the period of some three millennia before the Roman conquest

Hunters in Transition Marek Zvelebil, 2009-06-18 Hunters in Transition analyses the emergence of post glacial hunter gatherer communities and the development of farming Essays and Studies Presented to William Ridgeway on His Sixtieth Birthday, 6 August, 1913 Edmund Crosby Quiggin, 1913 Essays and Studies Presented to William Ridgeway, The Archaeology of Death Robert Chapman, Ian Kinnes, Klavs Randsborg, 1981-10-22 This volume brings together studies on the disposal of the dead and the archaeological research potential of found remains Lives in Land - Mucking excavations Christopher Evans, Grahame Appleby, Sam Lucy, 2015-12-31 The excavations led by Margaret and Tom Jones on the Thames gravel terraces at Mucking Essex undertaken between 1965 and 1978 are legendary The largest area excavation ever undertaken in the British Isles involving around 5000 participants recorded around 44 000 archaeological features dating from the Beaker to Anglo Saxon periods and recovered something in the region of 1 7 million finds of Mesolithic to post medieval date While various publications have emerged over the intervening years the death of both directors insufficient funding many organizational complications and the sheer volume of material evidence have severely delayed full publication of this extraordinary palimpsest landscape Lives in Land is the first of two major volumes which bring together all the evidence from Mucking presenting both the detail of many important structures and assemblages and a comprehensive synthesis of landscape development through the ages settlement histories changing land use death and burial industry and craft activities The long time gap since completion of the excavations has allowed the authors the unprecedented opportunity to stand back from the density of site data and place the vast sum of Mucking evidence in the wider context of the archaeology of southern England throughout the major periods of occupation and activity Lives in Land begins with a thorough evaluation of the methods philosophy and archival status of the Mucking project against the organizational and funding background of its time and discusses its fascinating and complex history through a period of fundamental change in archaeological practice legislation finance research priorities and theoretical paradigms in British Archaeology Subsequent chapters deal with the prehistoric landscape each focusing on the major themes that emerge by major period from analysis and synthesis of the data The authors draw on archival material including site notebooks and personal accounts from key participants to provide a detailed but lively account of this iconic landscape investigation Roots of Nationhood: The Archaeology and History of Scotland Louisa Campbell, Dene Wright, Nicola A.
