Interpreting School Participation School Climate Survey Data

Introduction

This Discussion Guide provides suggestions to help you use your school climate data to make meaningful interpretations about the topic of School Participation within your state, district, or school, taking into account the viewpoints of the people who took the survey in your state, district, or school (i.e., students, instructional staff, noninstructional staff, parents/guardians).¹ It accompanies the School Climate Improvement Resource Package (SCIRP) Data Interpretation Guide, which contains information, support, and resources to help you interpret and use your survey results, using the U.S. Department of Education (ED) School Climate Surveys (EDSCLS) model of school climate domains and topic areas as a framework. We encourage you to read the full Data Interpretation Guide before using this Discussion Guide so that you have a better understanding of the model and types of results you will see.

This document is intended for use by EDSCLS users as well as users of other school climate surveys, which often include a topic area similar in composition to the School Participation topic area in the EDSCLS. Directions specific to EDSCLS users are denoted in this guide with the EDSCLS logo (right).

This guide, along with the Data Interpretation Guide, can help you to derive meaning from your state's, district's, or school's School Participation results, which you can use to identify areas for improvement.^{2,3} In the following sections, you will find:

- A definition of school participation as it relates to school climate
- Guiding questions to help you think through your School Participation data from a multi-tiered perspective—universal and targeted (Click on the Data Interpretation Guide and the Reference Manual to find additional information on multi-tiered approaches.)
- Guiding questions organized by data types (School Participation scale scores and item-level School Participation data):
 - Initial and deeper guiding questions about School Participation for districts (Appendix A)
 - Initial and deeper guiding questions about School Participation for schools (Appendix B)
- A link to a School Participation webpage that includes resources on interventions that districts and schools can implement immediately to address specific areas of need as well as longer term resources for improving school participation.

¹ This document provides strategies applicable to public schools and districts, including charter authorizers, charter management organizations, education management organizations, individual charter schools, and charter local educational agencies.

² Information in this Discussion Guide is pertinent to EDSCLS pilot sites as well as those administering the EDSCLS before fall 2017, at which time benchmark data are slated to be available in the web-based platform. This guide will be updated accordingly after the release of benchmark data.

³ States that host the EDSCLS can use the same suggestions as given here for districts; states will also be able to compare data across their districts, as well as across their schools.
