Teaching English Reading in the Chinese-Speaking World Clay Williams, 2016-04-07. This book investigates inherent structural differences in the Chinese and English writing systems which predispose learners from childhood to develop specific literacy learning strategies which can impair later efforts at learning foreign language literacy if the foreign language script varies significantly from the native language script. It compares educational practices and philosophies in Chinese and English speaking classrooms and examines the psychological underpinnings of these literacy learning strategies. This book presents psychometric testing of adult reading strategy defaults and examines case study data revealing that Chinese students are susceptible to misapplying Chinese character level processing strategies to English word identification tasks which decreases reading efficiency and ultimately can lead to learning failure. Finally, a new educational framework is proposed for teaching beginning language specific word identification and literacy learning skills to learners whose first language script varies significantly from that of the target language.

Higher Education Reconsidered Jason E. Lane, 2015-10-15. Focuses on the opportunities and challenges of using the science of change to improve the academic enterprise. This is not another book about why higher education needs to change. This volume is about how to facilitate change. What could higher education achieve if varied stakeholders decided to work together to accomplish a shared vision by using data and scaling up evidence based interventions? The contributors offer examples and instructions to help execute change in order to drive collective impact. When we understand large scale change in other sectors such as healthcare, business and the social sector, it can help inform us of what collective impact looks like and how to get there. A deeper investigation into the science of change will enable us to work towards increasing access, overcoming racial disparities, reducing the need for remediation and improving learning outcomes.
