Out of the Study and Into the Field Robert Parkin, Anne de Sales, 2010-06-01 Outside France French anthropology is conventionally seen as being dominated by grand theory produced by writers who have done little or no fieldwork themselves and who may not even count as anthropologists in terms of the institutional structures of French academia This applies to figures from Durkheim to Derrida Mauss to Foucault though there are partial exceptions such as Lévi Strauss and Bourdieu It has led to a contrast being made especially perhaps in the Anglo Saxon world between French theory relying on rational inference and British empiricism based on induction and generally skeptical of theory While there are contrasts between the two traditions this is essentially a false view It is this aspect of French anthropology that this collection addresses in the belief that the neglect of many of these figures outside France is seriously distorting our view of the French tradition of anthropology overall At the same time the collection will provide a positive view of the French tradition of ethnography stressing its combination of technical competence and the sympathies of its practitioners for its various ethnographic subjects

The book begins with analyses of key filmmakers Robert Flaherty Robert Garner and Tim Asch who have striven to generate profound statements about human behavior on film Ruby then discusses the idea of research film Eric Michaels and indigenous media the ethics of representation the nature of ethnography anthropological knowledge and film and lays the groundwork for a critical approach to the field that borrows selectively from film communication media and cultural studies Witty and original yet intensely theoretical this collection is a major contribution to the field of visual anthropology

Becoming an Anthropologist Gerald Mars, 2015-10-05 Mars graphic and often vivid narrative can be read simply as the anecdotal memoirs of an anthropologist The experiences he recounts are sometimes hilarious touch occasionally on the dangerous and are always sensitively and expertly explored But for those who want to know more the book's expansive footnotes and references to key sources also offer a stimulating introduction to social anthropology its theories and its methods Mars begins by describing his childhood life in a tightly structured working class community during World War Two He then contrasts this with an account of the hidden underlife of an entrepreneurial crime prone seaside resort Blackpool where he worked as a spieler barker Two years experience of National Service provides an account of the social organisation of the RAF followed by discussion of aspects of the organisation of Cambridge University What follows then is a lifetime spent living and working in different cultures around the world The results are continual insights gained by comparison and contrasts that illuminate aspects not only of other cultures but also of our own
