Violence and Serenity Natasha Reichle, 2007-07-26 The mention of Buddhism in Indonesia calls to mind for many people the Central Javanese monument of Borobudur one of the largest Buddhist monuments in the world and the subject of extensive scholarly scrutiny The neglect of scholarship on Buddhist art from later periods might lead one to assume that after the tenth century Buddhism had been completely eclipsed by the predominantly Hindu Eastern Javanese dynasties Yet as the works discussed here illustrate extraordinary Buddhist images were still being produced as late as the fourteenth century Violence and Serenity offers a close examination of some of the impressive works from East Java and Sumatra and explores their political and religious roles The number of clearly identifiable Buddhist works from the Singasari and Majapahit dynasties 1222 ca 1520 is limited yet existing examples are impressive They demonstrate a remarkable level of craftsmanship and are exceptionally expressive exhibiting a range of emotions from the ferocious to the serene Following a brief discussion of the early history of Buddhism in Indonesia Natasha Reichle focuses each chapter on a specific statue or group of statues and considers the larger issues evoked by the images Through a rarely examined depiction of the last Singasari king she explores the nature of religion in Java in the late thirteenth century and what we know about tantric practices and the syncretism of Hinduism and Buddhism She reassesses the question of portraiture in ancient Javanese art while contemplating the famous Prajaparamita from Singasari Notions of kingship are discussed in light of a number of statues depicting the Buddhist deity Amoghapasa and his attendants and the meanings of the Amoghapasa mandala The final chapter examines the origins and significance of one of Indonesia's most spectacular sculptures a four meter high Buddhist bhairava demon discovered in West Sumatra
