Female Alliances Amanda E. Herbert,2014-01-21 In the late seventeenth and early eighteenth centuries cultural economic and political changes as well as increased geographic mobility placed strains upon British society But by cultivating friendships and alliances women worked to socially cohere Britain and its colonies In the first book length historical study of female friendship and alliance for the early modern period Amanda Herbert draws on a series of interlocking microhistorical studies to demonstrate the vitality and importance of bonds formed between British women in the long eighteenth century She shows that while these alliances were central to women s lives they were also instrumental in building the British Atlantic world

Women's Fiction Christine Bayles Kortsch, 2016-05-13 In her immensely readable and richly documented book Christine Bayles Kortsch asks us to shift our understanding of late Victorian literary culture by examining its inextricable relationship with the material culture of dress and sewing Even as the Education Acts of 1870 1880 and 1891 extended the privilege of print literacy to greater numbers of the populace stitching samplers continued to be a way of acculturating girls in both print literacy and what Kortsch terms dress culture Kortsch explores nineteenth century women s education sewing and needlework mainstream fashion alternative dress movements working class labor in the textile industry and forms of social activism showing how dual literacy in dress and print cultures linked women writers with their readers Focusing on Victorian novels written between 1870 and 1900 Kortsch examines fiction by writers such as Olive Schreiner Ella Hepworth Dixon Margaret Oliphant Sarah Grand and Gertrude Dix with attention to influential predecessors like Elizabeth Gaskell Charlotte Bront and George Eliot Periodicals with their juxtaposition of journalism fiction and articles on dress and sewing are particularly fertile sites for exploring the close linkages between print and dress cultures Informed by her examinations of costume collections in British and American museums Kortsch s book broadens our view of New Woman fiction and its relationship both to dress culture and to contemporary women s fiction The Seam Line Israel Drori, 2000 Many Arab communities in Israel s Galilee region are home to export oriented textile factories owned by multinational corporations whose Jewish managers employ local Arab and Druse women as seamstresses and low level work supervisors Based on five years of ethnographic research this book explores how these managers and workers negotiate the terms and meanings of factory work integrating work culture with the norms and values of the host towns in order for employment arrangements to succeed The entrance of industrial corporations into developing areas of the world particularly in those industries employing primarily women has generated tension between traditional familial and social roles and the demands of industrial working life In Israel these tensions are further complicated by the social and political dynamics of Arab Jewish conflict as well as the strictly demarcated roles of women and men in traditional Arab society The resolution of these tensions on the shop floor shapes the social relations of production the factories management systems family life in the industrial towns and individual status and autonomy The negotiation involves unequal power relations manifested in a dual patriarchal structure the Arab cultural practice of male domination of women as well as the formal management system of the textile concern which dictates the nature of relationships between Jewish managers and Arab women workers To meet their business goals the managers must cooperate with the community that provides their workforce adapting its norms and appropriating its worldview The managers are constrained by the strict social rules of Arab and Druse society and respond by attempting to harness and manipulate local family values to foster personal commitment furthering production goals through paternal control The consequence of this paternalism is a workforce that relates to the organization as family identifies with its goals and internalizes feelings of loyalty However the workforce also uses the plant as the arena for developing self awareness and enhancing personal independence and status within the family The seamstresses emerge as active shapers of the organizational culture forcing the managers to adapt to and comply with their personal needs and perceptions of work
