in the British Imagination Cassander L. Smith,2016-12-14 As Spain and England vied for dominance of the Atlantic world during the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries mounting political and religious tensions between the two empires raised a troubling specter for contemporary British writers attempting to justify early English imperial efforts Specifically these writers focused on encounters with black Africans throughout the Atlantic world attempting to use these points of contact to articulate and defend England s global ambitions In Black Africans in the British Imagination Cassander L Smith investigates how the physical presence of black Africans both enabled and disrupted English literary responses to Spanish imperialism By examining the extent to which this population helped to shape early English narratives from political pamphlets to travelogues Smith offers new perspectives on the literary social and political impact of black Africans in the early Atlantic world With detailed analysis of the earliest English language accounts from the Atlantic world including writings by Sir Francis Drake Sir Walter Raleigh and Richard Ligon Smith approaches contact narratives from the perspective of black Africans recovering figures often relegated to the margins This interdisciplinary study explores understandings of race and cross cultural interaction and revises notions of whiteness blackness and indigeneity Smith reveals the extent to which contact with black Africans impeded English efforts to stigmatize the Spanish empire as villainous and to malign Spain s administration of its colonies In addition her study illustrates how black presences influenced the narrative choices of European and later Euro American writers providing a more nuanced understanding of black Africans role in contemporary literary productions of the region

Responsibility Sharing in International Refugee Law Elizabeth Mavropoulou,2025-09-25 Achieving a more fair and equitable sharing of refugee protection responsibilities between states has been a perennial challenge of the global refugee regime The Refugee Convention did not codify a legal obligation of responsibility sharing and as a result any assistance to refugee host states remains voluntary This responsibility sharing gap has in turn negatively impacted on the quality of refugee protection and on interstate relations by exacerbating existing inequalities undermining the fairness of the international refugee law regime This book offers a pragmatic yet principled solution to the responsibility sharing gap It puts down a detailed proposal for the long resisted UN Protocol on Responsibility Sharing which would codify a light package of responsibility sharing obligations by requiring states to contribute to refugee protection and solutions under a framework of common but differentiated responsibilities based on capabilities Building on the Global Compact on Refugees and drawing inspiration from international climate change law the book makes a compelling case for further multilateral law making

Timmons Roberts,2015-11-27 How Latin American countries became leading voices and innovators on addressing climate change and what threatens their leadership Latin American countries have increased their influence at the United Nations climate change negotiations and offered potential solutions on coping with global warming But in the face of competing priorities sometimes these climate policies are jettisoned undermined or simply ignored A Fragmented Continent focuses on Latin America s three major blocs at the U N climate negotiations and how they attempt to balance climate action with building prosperity Brazil has reduced its deforestation but continues its drive for economic growth and global recognition A leftist group led by Venezuela Bolivia and Ecuador decries the injustice of climate change but is highly dependent on the export of fossil fuels A new group including Chile Costa Rica and Peru and supported by Mexico offers sharp reductions in their carbon emissions in return for greater action by others these countries now have to deliver on their promises Weaving together issues of politics and economy trade foreign policy civil society and environmental protection A Fragmented Continent offers a long missing perspective on one of this century s greatest challenges and neglected regions

Region, Race, and Class in the Making of Colombia Alfonso Múnera,2023-08-18 This pioneering translation of Alfonso M nera s seminal work El fracaso de la naci n presents a new interpretation and innovative perspective on canonical Colombian history and the failure of the Colombian nation to English speaking readers Mainstream historiography depicts Colombian independence as the achievement of European descendent elites only downplaying the role and importance of regional subaltern classes M nera s well researched account challenges theoretical political and cultural interventions and shows that these subaltern groups were pivotal to achieving independence from Spain It was their organizing and pressing for freedom from colonial domination that ultimately brought about independence in Cartagena and later to the whole country Yet M nera demonstrates that these differing regional elites meant that a single coherent unity across New Granada was not possible a point that would ultimately doom subsequent nation building efforts Offering a truly decolonizing perspective one that has remained hidden from official accounts of Colombian independence scholars and researchers in political science history sociology and anthropology will welcome the opportunity to read this work for the first time in translation
