Art Markets and Digital Histories Claartje Rasterhoff,Sandra van Ginhoven,2020-03-16 This Special Issue of Arts investigates the use of digital methods in the study of art markets and their histories As historical and contemporary data is rapidly becoming more available and digital technologies are becoming integral to research in the humanities and social sciences we sought to bring together contributions that reflect on the different strategies that art market scholars employ to navigate and negotiate digital techniques and resources The essays in this issue cover a wide range of topics and research questions Taken together the essays offer a reflection on what takes to research art markets which includes addressing difficult topics such as the nature of the research questions and the data available to us and the conceptual aspects of art markets in order to define and operationalize variables and to interpret visual and statistical patterns for scholarship In our view this discussion is enriched

when also taking into account how to use shared or interoperable ontologies and vocabularies to define concepts and relationships that facilitate the use and exchange of linked open data for cultural heritage and historical research

Grief Made Marble Seth Estrin, 2023-01-01 A groundbreaking account of ancient Greek funerary sculpture and its emotional effects In this lyrically written and beautifully illustrated study Seth Estrin probes the emotional effects of one of the largest and most important categories of Greek sculpture the funerary monuments of Classical Athens Instead of simply documenting experiences of bereavement he demonstrates that funerary monuments played a vital role in giving grief visual and material presence employing the subtle effects of relief sculpture to make private experiences of loss socially meaningful to others By identifying the deaths they marked as worthy of grief funerary monuments mobilized fundamental questions about sculptural form and pictorial recognition to political ends instrumentalizing the emotional dimensions of sculpture as a means to construct and uphold social hierarchies Grounded in careful study of numerous monuments new readings of their accompanying epigrams and ancient literary sources and close consideration of both ancient and modern theories of emotion Grief Made Marble makes a landmark contribution not only to the study of Greek sculpture but to our broader understanding of the relationship between art and emotion in antiquity

Writing the Lives of Painters Karen Junod, 2011-01-27 Writing the Lives of Painters explores the development of artists biographies in eighteenth and early nineteenth century Britain During this period artists gradually distanced themselves from artisans and began to be recognised for their imaginative and intellectual skills The development of the art market and the burgeoning of an exhibition culture as well as the foundation of the Royal Academy of Arts in 1768 all contributed to redefining the rank of artists in society This social redefinition of the status of artists in Britain was shaped by a thriving print culture Contemporary artists were discussed in a wide range of literary forms including exhibition reviews art critical pamphlets and journalistic gossip columns Biographical accounts of modern artists emerged in a dialogue with these other types of writing This book is an account of a new literary genre tracing its emergence in the cultural context of the late eighteenth and early nineteenth centuries It considers artistic biography as a malleable generic framework for investigation Indeed while the lives of painters in Britain did not completely abandon traditional tropes the genre significantly widened its scope and created new individual and social narratives that reflected and accommodated the needs and desires of new reading audiences Writing the Lives of Painters also argues that the proliferation of a myriad biographical forms mirrored the privileging of artistic originality and difference within an art world that had yet to generate a coherent British School of painting Finally by focusing on the emergence of individual biographies of British artists the book examines how and why the art historiographic model established by Giorgio Vasari was gradually dismantled in the hands of British biographers during the Romantic period
