the whole of humanity at the brink of extinction As the demands of overpopulation and of an unsustainable consumer economy dry up existing natural resources and destroy vital ecosystems that we need to survive the corporate controlled media saturate worldwide audiences with a barrage of hypnotic images and narratives to stimulate over consumption and to distract us from the consequences of rampant consumerism while remaining silent about the systematic destruction of the environment and our future Academicians from the across the sciences the social sciences the arts and the humanities engage in an interdisciplinary discussion informed by a vision of an interconnected humanity and focused on the role of the media in forging public discourse Contributors to the collection argue that today s media are failing humanity Rather than providing pictures of reality on which the world s citizens can act the corporate controlled media are widely used as instruments of commercial and political propaganda creating an immense web of images and narratives that their creators know to be not true fabrications designed to sell to manipulate in a sense to enslave worldwide audiences At the core of the discussion in this book is a utopian vision of one unified humanity billions of people whose destinies and dreams are imbricated and interdependent and who share the same world the same habitats It is a vision of a world that cherishes diversity but is also united a world where our differences are no longer a cause for conflict and where separate countries or separate ethnic or religious communities no longer have to compete or wage war to exploit available resources As extensions of humans the media can be instruments of salvation instead of destruction liberation instead of oppression But first we must recognize the challenges we face

Performing Knowledge, 1750-1850 Mary Helen Dupree, Sean B. Franzel, 2015-07-31 The period between 1750 and 1850 was a time when knowledge and its modes of transmission were reconsidered and reworked in fundamental ways Social and political transformations such as the French Revolution and the Industrial Revolution went hand in hand with in new ways of viewing sensing and experiencing what was perceived to be a rapidly changing world This volume brings together a range of essays that explore the performance of knowledge in the period from 1750 to 1850 in the broadest possible sense The essays explore a wide variety of literary theatrical and scientific events staged during this period including scientific demonstrations philosophical lectures theatrical performances stage design botany primers musical publications staged Schiller memorials acoustic performances and literary declamations These events served as vital conduits for the larger process of generating differentiating and circulating knowledge By unpacking the significance of performance and performativity for the creation and circulation of knowledge in Germany during this period the volume makes an important contribution to interdisciplinary German cultural studies performance studies and the history of knowledge Resources in Education ,1991-04 Forthcoming Books Rose Arny,2003-04
