Aim: To examine the content, theoretical frameworks and effectiveness of nursing interventions utilizing patient-reported outcome measures (PROMs) in the intensive care unit (ICU).

Design: A systematic review and narrative synthesis following the guidelines of the preferred reporting items for systematic reviews and meta-analysis checklist.

Methods: We searched the MEDLINE, CINAHL, PsycINFO, SweMed and Cochrane controlled trials register (CENTRAL) databases for studies evaluating interventions primarily delivered by nurses in the ICU. Two independent reviewers performed study selection, data extraction and risk of bias.

Results: Twenty-two studies were included, whereas only seven studies used a theoretical framework. The interventions were heterogeneous in content, duration and choice of PROMs. Outcomes were related to covering patients' and families' basic needs, described by Henderson as essential functions of nursing. Several studies reported positive intervention effects, and nurses' communication and psychosocial care were considered essential components of nursing interventions in the ICU.

1 | INTRODUCTION

Being acute or critically ill is stressful for both patients and their kin, and these patients require continued help and support in concert with the best medical treatment (Bleek & Fontaine, 2013; Dias et al., 2015). Modern intensive care is based on collaboration between professional groups; however, intensive care nurses are continually present with the patient in intensive care units (ICUs) to monitor their condition and coordinate their care. Henderson (1955) defined a nurse's universal function as the responsibility of assisting the patient in covering their basic needs whilst being in vulnerable situations and helping the individual become independent of assistance. Henderson also proposed 14 components of basic nursing care that attend to the patient's physiological, psychological, spiritual and social needs (Funakawa & Howe, 1995; Henderson, 1955). To take care of the whole person and their families, nurses in the ICU conduct independent interventions that attend to the patients' and their families' basic needs. These interventions are complex, multicomponent health services (Campbell et al., 2000) and may have many potential active ingredients; the question is which components contribute to the best outcomes.

Patient-reported outcome measures (PROMs) are standardized self-reported data collection techniques focusing on the patient's health status (Valderas et al., 2008). They highlight the patient's or their family's viewpoint rather than focusing on purely clinical outcomes, thereby improving patient-centred care (Kynoch et al., 2020). Accordingly, nurses need to understand and use outcomes measured from both clinical and patient/family perspectives to guide
