Reviewing the Forties Diana Trilling, 1978 Selections from the now famous critic's fiction reviews for the Nation during the 1940s provide a record of life on the home front during World War II and the years immediately following

Write Like a Man Ronnie Grinberg, 2024-03-26 How virility and Jewishness became hallmarks of postwar New York's combative intellectual scene In the years following World War II the New York intellectuals became some of the most renowned critics and writers in the country Although mostly male and Jewish this prominent group also included women and non Jews Yet all of its members embraced a secular Jewish machismo that became a defining characteristic of the contemporary experience Write like a Man examines how the New York intellectuals shared a uniquely American conception of Jewish masculinity that prized verbal confrontation polemical aggression and an unflinching style of argumentation Ronnie Grinberg paints illuminating portraits of figures such as Norman Mailer Hannah Arendt Lionel and Diana Trilling Mary McCarthy Norman Podhoretz Midge Decter and Irving Howe She describes how their construction of Jewish masculinity helped to propel the American Jew from outsider to insider even as they clashed over its meaning in a deeply anxious project of self definition Along the way Grinberg sheds light on their fraught encounters with the most contentious issues and ideas of the day from student radicalism and the civil rights movement to feminism Freudianism and neoconservatism A spellbinding chronicle of mid century America Write like a Man shows how a combative and intellectually grounded vision of Jewish manhood contributed to the masculinization of intellectual life and shaped some of the most important political and cultural debates of the postwar era

Imagining Our Time Lewis P. Simpson, 2007-01-01 Lewis P Simpson towers among scholars of American literary studies as an intellectual historian of the South and American literary culture and a revered essayist His last book Imagining Our Time offers a wide ranging erudite and enlightening look at the culture of letters in American society Primarily through an examination of the works of some of the leading writers of the twentieth century many of whom Simpson knew intimately this final volume provides insight into the struggles and concerns unique to prominent American thinkers literary artists and critics contemporary to his own lifetime Often moving from an intriguing anecdote or recollection to a rigorous discussion of ideas Simpson's style is captivating He begins with speculation on Eric Voegelin's interest in Julien Benda's polemic La Trahison des Clercs and follows with thoughts on the declining faith in the university as an embodiment of humanistic letters and learning surveying the American Republic as far back as Benjamin Franklin In successive chapters Simpson pays tribute to Malcolm Cowley as a hero of the literary art and probes Robert Penn Warren's fixation with Thomas Jefferson as manifested in the writing and complete rewriting of Brother to Dragons He ruminates on the vocation of the critic as practiced by Lionel Trilling and Diana Trilling and the literary and cultural politics of the 1930s Brief portraits of Andrew Lytle and Louis D Rubin Jr appear as well as a poignant argument for the autobiographical cast of Eudora Welty's writing A lengthy riveting consideration of Simpson's friend Walker Percy and Percy's quest for identity as a modern Christian novelist alienated from the society around him forms the core of the volume Fred Hobson's introduction fittingly rounds out Imagining Our Time offering an intimate appreciation of Lewis Simpson who will remain a giant among scholars of southern literary studies

Rosenfeld's Lives Steven J. Zipperstein, 2009-04-01 Born in Chicago in 1918 the prodigiously gifted and erudite Isaac Rosenfeld was anointed a genius upon the publication of his luminescent novel Passage from Home and was expected to surpass even his closest friend and rival Saul Bellow Yet when felled by a heart attack at the age of thirty eight Rosenfeld had published relatively little his life reduced to a metaphor for literary failure In this deeply contemplative book Steven J Zipperstein seeks to reclaim Rosenfeld's legacy by opening up his work Zipperstein examines for the first time the small mountain of unfinished manuscripts the writer left behind as well as his fiercely candid journals and letters In the process Zipperstein unearths a turbulent life that was obsessively grounded in a profound commitment to the ideals of the writing life Rosenfeld's Lives is a fascinating exploration of literary genius and aspiration and the paradoxical power of literature to elevate and to enslave It illuminates the cultural and political tensions of post war America Jewish intellectual life of the era and most poignantly the struggle at the heart of any writer's life

Threads of Life Richard Freadman, 2001-02 Many autobiographers share profound questions about human life with their readers questions like To what extent was my life imposed on me To what extent did I bring it about through particular choices and actions through the activity of my own will Indeed the issue of the will is central to autobiographical writing and some of the greatest autobiographies give extended consideration to the will its nature its powers its limitations the forms of freedom constraint and expression it finds in various cultures its role in particular human lives In this new study unprecedented in subject and scope Richard Freadman offers the first sustained account of how changing theological philosophical and psychological accounts of the human will have been reflected in the writing of autobiography and of how autobiography in its turn has helped shape various understandings of the will Early chapters trace narrative representations of the will from antiquity the Greeks and Augustine to postmodernism Derrida and Barthes with particular emphasis on late modernity's culture of the will Later chapters then present detailed and powerfully original readings of autobiographical texts by Louis Althusser Roland Barthes B F Skinner Ernest Hemingway Simone de Beauvoir Arthur Koestler Stephen Spender and Diana Trilling Freadman's interdisciplinary approach to autobiography and the will includes a theoretical defense of the view that autobiographers are in varying degrees agents in their own texts Threads of Life argues that late modernity has inherited deeply conflicted attitudes to the will Freadman suggests that these attitudes now deeply embedded in contemporary cultural discourse need reexamining In this he contends reflective autobiography has an important part to play

Literary Criticism from Plato to Postmodernism James Seaton,2014-04-28 This book offers a history of literary criticism from Plato to the present arguing that this history can best be seen as a dialogue among three traditions the Platonic Neoplatonic and the humanistic originated by Aristotle There are many histories of literary criticism but this is the first to clarify our understanding of the many seemingly incommensurable approaches employed over the centuries by reference to the three traditions Making its case by careful analyses of individual critics the book argues for the relevance of the humanistic tradition in the twenty first century and beyond
