Neuroendocrinological Aspects of Neurosurgery John D. Pickard, Francois Cohadon, Joao Lobo Antunes, 2012-12-06 The Third Advanced Seminar in Neurosurgical Research was held in the Palazzo Pisani Moretta Venice Italy from 30th April to 1st May 1987 and was devoted to Neuroendocrinological Aspects of Neurosurgery The general aim of these advanced seminars is to bring together European Neurosurgeons interested or involved in research work either clinically experimentally or both in a given field in order to achieve in depth informal discussions not possible in the more conventional large congress In particular these advanced seminars seek to provide high level teaching by experienced basic scientists to provide state of the art assessment of the subject and to highlight areas of controversy that may be suitable for future research A special effort is made to identify younger neurosurgeons through the auspices of the European Directory of Neurosurgical Research who have a particular interest in the subject under discussion not all of whom will have immediate access to the most advanced modern technology The topic of Neuroendocrinology was chosen because clinically it is an area of controversy that should be amenable to application of new techniques including molecular biology There is a tendency on the part of Endocrinologists not to appreciate always that disturbances seen by Neurosurgeons may be different and need special attention Inevitably there has been a little delay in publication of the manuscripts but these have been updated appropriately
