Developing a Leadership Role Within the Key Stage 1 Curriculum Julie A. Davies, 1995 Since 1989 initial teacher training courses in England and Wales have recognized the need for teachers to take a lead in a school subject area in their first appointment There is no longer a place for a primary school teacher newly qualified or not whose sole responsibility is his or her own class Further a teacher must have specific specialist knowledge and expertise in particular subjects which must be disseminated to the rest of the staff A teacher also needs to develop the skills of communication leadership and persuasion

Differentiation and the Secondary Curriculum Susan Hart,2005-08-03 Differentiation is a key part of effective teaching and is currently an INSET priority for many secondary schools The book gives real life examples and offers practical strategies for tackling this often difficult area English Curriculum in Schools Louise Poulson,1998-09-01 This work offers a comprehensive account of the development of English as a school subject It also examines the debates over English which have centred on the National Curriculum and its assessment Drawing on data from two recent studies it investigates what is taught in the English curriculum Particular attention has been given to the divisions between language and literature in English as well as the debates about the teaching of grammar and Standard English Underpinning the analysis is a concentration on the differences and similarities between the primary and secondary curricula Promoting the importance of English language in contemporary society the book provides an overview of the current scene Special Educational Needs and the Education Reform Act Neville Jones,Jim Docking,James Woodrow Docking,1992 In straightforward terms the authors address the issues arising as a result of the legislation and the implications for the financing and management of schools through the local management of schools provision They show that the National Curriculum poses problems concerning pupils with special needs Coordinating English at Key Stage 2 Tony Martin,Mick Waters,2003-09-02 school education and education in general English as a Second Language in the Mainstream Constant Leung, Christine Davison, Bernard Mohan, 2014-07-15 Since it was first established in the 1970 s the Applied Linguistics and Language Study series has become a major force in the study of practical problems in human communication and language education Drawing extensively on empirical research and theoretical work in linguistics sociology psychology and education the series explores key issues in language acquisition and language use English as a Second Language learners are now a considerable and increasing part of the mainstream of urban schools in English speaking countries Beyond the learning of English this development raises broader questions of language as a medium of education in a multilingual multicultural environment Drawing on their experience as researchers and educators in Australia Canada and England the authors of English as a Second Language in the Mainstream present an up to date account of advances in theory and practice Their analysis of system wide provision however suggests that a truly responsive educational vision is lacking government policy is inadequate educational practices for ESL students are either underdeveloped or poorly coordinated with practices for other students and the rhetoric of reform fails to engage significantly with issues of teaching and resources The authors argue towards a more comprehensive vision which can acknowledge the relation between issues concerning ESL students and issues concerning the educational system as a whole which can coordinate reforms in ESL education with general reforms which can explicitly and systematically integrate language learning and content learning and which can build more positively on the multilingual and multicultural nature of modern education for all students Children, Film and Literacy Becky Parry, 2013-10-22 Children Film and Literacy explores the role of film in children s lives The films children engage in provide them with imaginative spaces in which they create play and perform familiar and unfamiliar fantasy and everyday narratives and this narrative play is closely connected to identity literacy and textual practices Family is key to the encouragement of this social play and at school the playground is also an important site for this activity However in the literacy classroom some children encounter a discontinuity between their experiences of narrative at home and those that are valued in school Through film children develop understandings of the common characteristics of narrative and the particular language of film This book demonstrates the ways in which children are able to express and develop distinct and complex understandings of narrative that is to say where they can draw on their own experiences including those in a moving image form Children whose primary experiences of narrative are moving images face particular challenges when their experiences are not given opportunities for expression in the classroom and this has urgent implications for the teaching of literacy Literacy Goes to School Jo Weinberger, 1996-02-28 Very accessible not too technical or jargon ridden The practical suggestions were useful too if professionals feel inspired to promote change in their practice and policy it is helpful to have suggestions on where to start and what to do Management in Education Few primary teachers have a chance to find out in detail what children have already learnt and continue to learn about literacy at home with their parents This book gives a clear demonstration of literacy learning that takes place at home and how it differs from as well as relates to literacy at school It will help teachers to increase their understanding of this process and to build on their relationship with parents Such understanding the book shows can directly enhance children s literacy performance in school

The Wealth of Reality Margaret A. Syverson, 1999 Margaret A Syverson discusses the ways in which a theory of composing situations as ecological systems might productively be applied in composition studies She demonstrates not only how new research in cognitive science and complex systems can inform composition studies but also how composing situations can provide fruitful ground for research in cognitive science Syverson first introduces theories of complex systems currently studied in diverse disciplines She describes complex systems as adaptive self organizing and dynamic neither utterly chaotic nor entirely ordered these systems exist on the boundary between order and chaos Ecological systems are metasystems composed of interrelated complex systems Writers readers and texts together with their environments constitute one kind of ecological system Four attributes of complex systems provide a theoretical framework for this study distribution embodiment emergence and enaction Three case studies provide evidence for the application of these concepts an analysis of a passage from an autobiographical poem by Charles Reznikoff a study of first year college students writing collaboratively and a conflict in a computer forum of social scientists during the Gulf War The diversity of these cases tests the robustness of theories of distributed cognition and complex systems and suggests possibilities for wider application Syverson concludes with a discussion of some implications of an ecological approach for composition research pedagogy and assessment presenting the Learning Record model as one practical application of the theory Finally she argues that technological changes have created new environments for composing providing an opportunity to reconsider conventional environments as well
