(M)othering Labeled Children María Cioè-Peña, 2021-05-14 This book takes a distinctive approach to exploring the experiences and identities of minoritized Latinx mothers who are raising a child who is labeled as both an emergent bilingual and disabled. It showcases relationships between families and schools and reveals the myriad of ways in which school-based decisions regarding disability language and academic placement impact family dynamics. Treating the mothers as experts, this book uses testimonios to explore not only what mothers know but also how they develop funds of knowledge and how they apply them to their child's education. The stories shed light on how mothers perceive their child's disability, how they engage with their child, and the value they place on bilingualism. The narratives reveal the complex lives mothers lead and the ways in which they strive to meet the academic and socioemotional needs of their children regardless of the financial, physical, and emotional costs to them. This book has significant implications for researchers and professionals working in bilingual education, special education, inclusive education, and disability studies in education. Winner of the AAAL First Book Award 2023.

Art, Artisans and Apprentices James Ayres, 2014-06-30 Before the foundation of academies of art in London in 1758 and Philadelphia in 1805, most individuals who were to emerge as artists trained in workshops of varying degrees of relevance. Easel painters began their careers apprenticed to carriage house sign or ship painters, whilst a few were placed with those who made pictures. Sculptors emerged from a training as ornamental plasterers or carvers. Of the many other trades in a position to offer an appropriate background were limning, staining, engraving, surveying, chasing, and die sinking. In addition, plumbers gained the right to use oil painting, and for plasterers, the application of distemper was an extension of their trade. Central to the theme of this book is the notion that for those who were to become either painters or sculptors, a training in a trade met their practical needs. This training was of an altogether different nature to an education in an art school. In the past, prospective artists were offered by means of apprenticeships an empirical rather than a theoretical understanding of their ultimate vocation. James Ayres provides a lively account of the interrelationship between art and trade in the late seventeenth to early nineteenth centuries in both Britain and North America. He demonstrates with numerous illustrated examples the many cross-overs in the art and mystery of artistic training and to modern eyes the sometimes incongruous relationships between the various trades that contributed to the blossoming of many artistic careers, including some of the most illustrious names of the long eighteenth century.

The Dreyfus Affair G. James A. Dombrowski Frank T. Adams,1992 I read this book based on my reading of General Walker and the Murder of President Kennedy by Dr Jeffry Caulfield As portrayed in the Caulfield book Dombrowski was in the eye of the segregationist hurricane which swept the South in the 1950's and 1960's following the Brown decision by the Supreme Court This book gives a different perspective on the civil rights movement in the South Such classics as Where Rebels Roost by Susan Klopfer and Gothic Politics in the Deep South by Robert Sherrill tend to give a condescending attitude toward the South By contrast Dombrowski describes a different version of events a version which shows that behind the scenes activities for Southern liberalization were very methodical and proceeded at a businesslike pace and with very steady progress all the way from the

New Deal right up until the more radical 1970 s The book makes a case that if there were actually such a thing as The New South then Dombrowski had a very strong case for its paternity Dombrowski as many may already know had close personal links to Justice Hugo Black of Alabama who was himself a pioneer of a more open minded attitude to the race problem in the South
