Hegemonic Transformation Elaine Sio-ieng Hui, 2017-10-31 This book contends that the Chinese economic reform inaugurated since 1978 has been a top down passive revolution in Gramsci's term and that after three decades of reform the role of the Chinese state has been changing from steering the passive revolution through coercive tactics to establishing capitalist hegemony It illustrates that the labour law system is a crucial vehicle through which the Chinese party state seeks to secure the working class's consent to the capitalist class's ethno political leadership The labour law system has exercised a double hegemonic effect with regards to the capital labour relations and state labour relations through four major mechanisms However these effects have influenced the Chinese migrant workers in an uneven manner The affirmative workers have granted active consent to the ruling class leadership the indifferent ambiguous and critical workers have only rendered passive consent while the radical workers have refused to give any consent at all social class before considering the extent to which social class has been a key construct in three general areas of applied linguistics sociolinguistics bi multilingualism and second language acquisition and learning research Throughout the book Block suggests ways in which social class might be incorporated into future applied linguistics research A critical read for postgraduate students and researchers in the areas of applied linguistics language education and TESOL Rethinking Class Wai-chee Dimock, Michael T.
