Africa and Africans in the Making of the Atlantic World, 1400-1800 John Thornton,1998-04-28 This book explores Africa s involvement in the Atlantic world from the fifteenth century to the eighteenth century It focuses especially on the causes and consequences of the slave trade in Africa in Europe and in the New World African institutions political events and economic structures shaped Africa's voluntary involvement in the Atlantic arena before 1680 Africa's economic and military strength gave African elites the capacity to determine how trade with Europe developed Thornton examines the dynamics of colonization which made slaves so necessary to European colonizers and he explains why African slaves were placed in roles of central significance Estate structure and demography affected the capacity of slaves to form a self-sustaining society and behave as cultural actors transferring and transforming African culture in the New World World Music: Africa, Europe and the Middle East Simon Broughton, Mark Ellingham, Richard Trillo, 1999 First published in 1994 in one volume An A-Z of the music musicians and discs 2006 edition available as an e-book The Last Lost World Lydia Pyne, Stephen J. Pyne, 2012-06-14 An enlightening investigation of the Pleistocene's dual character as a geologic time and as a cultural idea The Pleistocene is the epoch of geologic time closest to our own It's a time of ice ages global migrations and mass extinctions of woolly rhinos mammoths giant ground sloths and not least early species of Homo It's the world that created ours But outside that environmental story there exists a parallel narrative that describes how our ideas about the Pleistocene have emerged This story explains the place of the Pleistocene in shaping intellectual culture and the role of a rapidly evolving culture in creating the idea of the Pleistocene and in establishing its dimensions This second story addresses how the epoch its Earth-shaping events and its creatures both those that survived and those that disappeared helped kindle new sciences and a new origins story as the sciences split from the humanities as a way of looking at the past Ultimately it is the story of how the dominant creature to emerge from the frost and fire world of the Pleistocene came to understand its place in the scheme of things A remarkable synthesis of science and history The Last Lost World describes the world that made our modern one Transgressing Boundaries. Elizabeth F. Oldfield, 2013 Fictions written between 1939 and 2005 by indigenous and white post-colonial women writers emerging from an African-European cultural experience form the focus of this study Their voyages into the European diasporic space in Africa are important for conveying how African women's literature is situated in relation to colonialism Notwithstanding the centrality of African literature in the new postcolonial literatures in English the accomplishments of the indigenous writer Grace Ogot have been eclipsed by the critical attention given to her male counterparts while Elspeth Huxley Barbara Kimenye and Marjorie Oludhe MacGoye who are of Western cultural provenance but adopt an African perspective are not accommodated by the genre of expatriate literature The present study of both indigenous and white post-colonial women's narratives that are common to both categories fills this gap Focused on the representation of gender identity culture and the Other the texts selected are set in Kenya and Uganda and a main concern is with the extent to which they are influenced by setting and intercultural influences The African woman's creation of textuality is at once the expression of female individualities and a transgression of boundaries The particular category of fiction for children as written by Kimenye and MacGoye reveals the configuration of a voice and identity for the female Other and writer which enables a subversive renegotiation of identity in the face of patriarchal traditions Why
