

THE MEN THAT DON'T GET AWAY

There's a race of men that don't get away,
A race that never stays still,
If they break the hearts of both men and kin,
And they roam the world as well.
They range the field and they roam the plain,
And they climb the mountain's steep,
There's a curse at the glory trail,
And they don't know how to rest.

If they just went straight they might go far,
They are strong and brave and true,
But they're always tired of the things that are,
And they want the strange and new.
They say, "Gee! Find me proper ground,
What a deep work I could make!"
So they chop and change, and each turn makes
Is only a fresh mistake.

And each forgets, as he trips and runs,
Such a brilliant, fruitful past.

And each forgets, as he trips and runs,

Who ran the losing race.

And each forgets that his path has led,
Forgets that his pride is deep,
Till he wanders one day with a bitter end,
In the glare of the truth as he lies.

He has failed.
He has failed, he has missed his chance,
He has done things by half.
Life's been a jolly good joke on him,
And now is the time to laugh.
Ah, but! He is one of the Legion Lost,
He was never meant to run,
He's a rolling stone, and he's dead in the end,
He's a man who never began.
