ABSTRACT

Kidnapping of all manner of persons has gained ascendancy among communities in Nigeria and has instilled fear which has affected communal living and functionality. More so, the police who are mandated to provide security for the people are often unprepared for the task at hand. This has made the populace to lose confidence in criminal justice systems and other law enforcement agents' ability to secure their lives and properties. Based on the above, this study examined the public perception of kidnapping in Dekina Local Government Area of Kogi State, Nigeria. The specific objectives were to examine the prevalence of kidnapping; an evaluation of the public perception on the causes of kidnapping; an examination on the effects of kidnapping on socio-political and economic activities and then bringing to light the strategies for mitigating the prevalence of kidnapping in Dekina Local Government Area. The study used cross sectional survey research design and was anchored on structural strain theoretical framework. Multi-stage sampling technique was utilized to randomly select participants from the sample size of 511 in their respective communities. The study found that there was a high prevalence of kidnapping in the study area arising from the causative factors such as attractive ransom payment, non-cooperation with the police, insufficient model with strong moral standard, and too much emphasis on material gains, poverty, greed and unemployment among others. Arising from the findings, it was recommended among others that religious organisations and parents should strongly inculcate morals in their children as people perceived to be involved in kidnapping are affiliates of varying religion; It also recommended that government should engage unemployed youth in jobs and empowerment programmes.

Measuring the Effectiveness of Regional Governing Systems David K. Hamilton, 2012-10-23 Regional governance is a topical public policy issue and is receiving increased attention from scholars government officials and civic leaders As countries continue to urbanize and centralize economic functions and population in metropolitan regions the traditional governing system is not equipped to handle policy issues that spill over local government boundaries Governments have utilized four basic approaches to address the regional governing problem consolidating governments adding a regional tier creating regional special districts and functional cooperative approaches The first two are structural approaches that require major radical changes to the governing system The latter two are governance approaches that contemplate marginal changes to the existing governance structure and rely generally on cooperation with other governments and collaboration with the nongovernmental sector Canada and the United States have experimented with these basic forms of regional governance This book is a systematic analysis of these basic forms as they have been experienced by North American cities Utilizing cases from Canada and the United States the book provides an in depth analysis of the pros and cons of each approach to regional governance This research provides an additional perspective on Canadian and U S regional governance and adds to the knowledge of Canadian and United States governing systems This study contributes to the literature on the various approaches to regional governance as well as bringing together the most current literature on regional governance The author develops a framework of the values that a regional governing system should provide and measures to assess how well each basic approach achieves these values Based on this assessment he suggests an approach to regional governance for North American metropolitan areas that best achieves these values

Public Perception of Climate Change Bjoern Hagen,2015-11-06 Despite the findings on global climate change presented by the scientific community there remains a significant gap between its recommendations and the actions of the public and policy makers So far scientists and the media have failed to successfully communicate the urgency of the climate change situation in such a way that long term comprehensive and legally binding policy commitments are being made on the national and international level This book examines the way the public processes information how they perceive threats and other perceptual factors that have a significant effect on how and to what degree climate change mitigation and adaptation strategies are supported Understanding public risk perception plays a vital role in communicating the challenges of global climate change Using a diverse range of international case studies this book explores the nature of public perceptions of climate change and identifies the perception factors which have a significant impact on the public s willingness to support global climate change policies or commit to behavioral changes to reduce greenhouse gas emissions and improve urban resiliency The comparative study of social and cultural factors beliefs attitudes and trust provides an international overview of best practices regarding the design implementation and generation of public support for climate change policies at a global level Offering valuable insight into climate change and risk communication the book should be of interest to students and scholars of environment studies politics urban planning and media and cultural studies
