and asks why after more than three decades it has not normalised. Despite considerable efforts to prevent infection and ambitious targets set to end the epidemic by 2030, HIV infections are increasing among young women and treatment uptake and adherence have been uneven. Focusing on the years preceding and following treatment access, this book addresses why an end to AIDS may be misplaced optimism. By examining public discourses and private narratives about infection, illness and death, this work reveals the contradictions between the lived experiences of AIDS sufferers on the one hand and biomedical certainties on the other. Based on long-term ethnographic research in rural villages of the South African lowveld and within HIV prevention interventions in South Africa more generally, this book offers an intimate perspective on the social and cultural responses to the epidemic.

Public Secrets Nora Roberts, 1998-03-02 New York Times bestselling author Nora Roberts deftly blends romance and suspense in this compelling novel of a woman whose career, marriage and very life are threatened by the truth about her own past. Emma McAvoy may have grown up in the limelight, but some secrets are hidden in a darkness no light can reach. Now on the verge of a successful career and having fallen in love with the man of her dreams, Emma is looking to the future. Yet it's the past that is about to catch up with her. For Emma, her childhood had been almost like a rags to riches fairy tale until the tragic night that changed her family forever. But what Emma thinks she knows about that terrible night and the man she's about to marry is only half the truth. The other half is locked away in the last place she'd ever think to look: her own memories. It's a mystery a handsome and relentlessly driven homicide detective needs to solve in a case that's haunted him for years and a secret someone will kill to keep.

Secrecy in Public Relations, Mediation and News Cultures Anne M. Cronin, 2023-01-19 This book investigates the relationship of secrecy as a social practice to contemporary media, news, cultures and public relations. Drawing on Georg Simmel's theorisation of how secrecy produces a second world alongside the obvious world and creates and reshapes social relations, Anne Cronin argues for close analysis of the PR industry as a powerful vector of secrecy and an examination of its relationship to news cultures. Using case studies and in-depth interviews as well as recent research in media and cultural studies, sociology, journalism studies and communication studies, the book analyses how PR practices generate a second shadow world of the media sphere which has a profound impact on the obvious world. It interrogates both the PR industry's and news culture's role in shaping social relations for a digital media landscape and those initiatives promoting transparency of data and decision-making processes. An insightful interdisciplinary approach to debates on media and power, this book will appeal to students of public relations, sociology, media studies, cultural studies and communication studies. It will also be of interest to scholars and practitioners working at the intersections of media, social relations and public trust.

Rethinking the Spectacle Devin Penner, 2019-06-15 Spectacle is usually considered a superficial form of politics which tries to distract and deceive a passive audience. It is difficult to see how this type of politics could be reconciled with the democratic requirement of active and informed agency. Rethinking the Spectacle re-examines the tension between spectacle and political agency in our hyper-mediated digital society Devin Penner uses the theories and practices of Guy Debord and the Situationist International as a point of departure offering both a critical review of Situationist ideas and a way to develop their radical democratic potential in the current political climate Emphasizing the importance of thinking about the connection between spectacle and broader democratic processes Rethinking the Spectacle also looks at various models of social and political organization and includes an in depth assessment of the 2011 Occupy movement Ultimately Rethinking the Spectacle concludes that properly conceived spectacle can in fact mobilize the public for egalitarian purposes The 'New' Documentary Nexus Anna Wiehl,2019-05-23 In the last ten years the field of documentary has been subject to substantial paradigm shifts due to the rise of digital media practices This publication explores some central questions arising in this context Who are the different interactors networking within the new documentary nexus How can we conceptualize interactive documentary practices as encounters and dynamic interactions within digital media culture and beyond How can one methodologically approach this complex networked yet dynamic nexus in its constant flux Developing a coherent and expandable operational set of methods to describe and analyse paradigmatic cases this book addresses documentary theorists new media scholars and students of media and communication studies who want to gain a survey of current developments in the field of interactive documentary practices

Feminist Interventions in Participatory Media Lauren S. Berliner,Ron Krabill,2018-09-14 Feminist Interventions in Participatory Media is an edited collection that brings together feminist theory and participatory media pedagogy It asks what if anything is inherently feminist about participatory media Can participatory media practices and pedagogies be used to reanimate or enact feminist futures And finally what reimagined feminist pedagogies are opened up or closed down by participatory media across various platforms spaces scales and practices Each chapter looks at a specific example where the author s have used participatory media to integrate technology and feminist praxis in production and teaching The case studies originate from sites as varied as community organizations to large scale collaborations between universities public media and social movements They offer insights into the continuities and disjunctures which stem from the adoption of and adaption to participatory media technologies In complicating and dismantling perceptions of participatory media as inherently liberatory Feminist Interventions in Participatory Media curbs the excesses of such claims and highlights those pedagogical methods and processes that do hold liberatory potential This collection thus provides a roadmap toward re imagining feminist futures while grounding that journey in the histories practices and past insights of feminism and media studies Secrecy at Work Christopher Grey,Jana Costas,2016-03-30 Secrecy is endemic within organizations woven into the fabric of our lives at work Yet until now we ve had an all too limited understanding of this powerful organizational force Secrecy is a part of work and keeping secrets is a form of work But also secrecy creates a social order a hidden architecture within our organizations Drawing on previously overlooked texts as well as well known classics Jana Costas and Christopher Grey identify three forms of secrecy formal secrecy as we see in the case of trade and state secrets based on law and regulation informal secrecy based on networks and trust and public or open secrecy where what is known goes undiscussed Animated with evocative examples from scholarship current events and works of fiction this framework presents a bold reimagining of organizational life

Defacement Michael T. Taussig, 1999 Defacement asks what happens when something precious is despoiled In specifying the human face as the ideal type for thinking through such violation this book raises the issue of secrecy as the depth that seems to surface with the tearing of surface
