The Economics of American Higher Education William E. Becker Jr., D.R. Lewis, 2012-12-06 Postsecondary educational institutions in the United States are facing increasing financial stress and waning public support Unless these trends can be changed higher education can be expected to stagnate What if anything can be done As a starting point advocates of higher education need to more fully recognize the issues associated with the economic mission of higher education and how this mission gets translated into individual student gains regional growth and social equity This requires an understanding of the relationship between the outcomes of higher education and measures of economic productivity and well being This volume addresses topics related to the role of postsecondary education in microeconomic development within the United States Attention is given to the importance of colleges and universities in the enhancement of individual students and in the advancement of the communities and states within which they work Although several of the chapters in this volume are aimed at research teaching universities much of what is presented throughout can be generalized to all of postsecondary education Little attention however is given to the role of higher education in the macroeconomic development of the United States this topic is covered in our related book American Higher Education and National Growth

Tierney, 1999 Academic life at the beginning of the 21st century will bring changes to the role of the professorate how they are rewarded and what their responsibilities are This book focuses on topics that pertain to the reform of faculty work and offers disparate opinions on the nature of the work Higher Education: Handbook of Theory and Research J.C. Smart, 2012-12-06 The Journal of Economic Education, 1984 The Racial Crisis in American Higher Education William A. Smith, Philip G. Altbach, Kofi Lomotey, 2012-02-01 Why is it that as we enter the twenty first century the nation's predominantly white colleges and universities continue to be settings where people of color feel unwelcome and marginalized. The contributors to this volume dissect a variety of structural and attitudinal factors that are prevalent in the higher education community: organizational constructs and value orientations which seem to hark more to the past than to the future. They comment on the political, social, and economic factors that have shaped academic culture and buttressed its quietly efficient maintenance of racially discriminatory practices. The American system of higher education is often regarded as the best in the world. Smith, Altbach, and Lomotey have edited a volume that implicitly asks how much better still it could be if it embraced people of color and provided them with a supportive and nurturing environment, one which encouraged them to reach their fullest creative and intellectual potential. Indeed, this will probably be the most significant challenge that the academy faces in the twenty-first century. William B. Harvey, Vice President and Director, Office of Minorities in Higher Education, American Council on Education, Washington, D.C.

Academic Advancement in Composition Studies Richard C. Gebhardt, Barbara Genelle Smith Gebhardt, 2023-04-28 This volume deals with a number of related issues that are becoming increasingly crucial for English studies during this time when most faculty in the field are assistant professors approaching tenure review or associate professors seeking promotion. These critical issues focus on the diversity of research and scholarly publication in composition studies. The fact that composition studies faculty are often evaluated by personnel committee members, department chairs, and deans unfamiliar with the nature and demands of the field. The way that American higher education is rethinking scholarship and the role it plays in the work and evaluation of faculty members and the role composition studies faculty can play in this review of scholarship and professional advancement. This book seeks to address the entire spectrum of composition studies: expository and argumentative writing, personal essay, literary nonfiction, technical and business writing, historical rhetoric, empirical research, and more, by understanding the nature of and evaluating the work of faculty members in this broad field. Scholarship and advancement issues are discussed in a variety of situations, including basic and regular first-year composition classes at four-year and two-year institutions or writing centers, advanced writing courses, ESL and skills development programs, and writing classes and programs for teachers, administrators, and researchers. The chapters focus on a variety of subjects, including the importance of mentoring and faculty development in all departments and institutions and how young scholar teachers and assistant professors can prepare for a successful personnel or tenure review.

Learning from Science and Technology Policy Evaluation Philip Shapira, Stefan Kuhlmann, 2003-01-01 The contributors analyse and contrast the need and demand for RIT performance measurement and evaluation within the US and European innovation and policy-making systems. They assess current US and European RIT evaluation practices and methods in key areas discuss applications of new evaluative approaches and consider strategies that could lead to improvements in RIT evaluation design and policies Resources in Education ,2001-04
