Mesibov, 2013-06-29 This volume like the other eight in the Current Issues in Autism series grew from our annual TEACCH conference The book is not however simply a compilation of conference proceedings Instead selected conference participants whose work has already achieved national and international recognition were asked to develop chapters around their presentations Other recognized experts in areas relevant to the conference theme were also asked to contribute chapters Although we were not able to include all of the workers who have contributed to the theme this volume represents our best effort to pull together for our readers the most current knowledge and state of the art practices Although aspects of cognition learning and behavioral motivation have been touched on for relevance to autism in other books in this series the growing integration of behavioral and cognitive theories has greatly enriched our educational interventions on behalf of autism While this volume does not include all the fascinating facets of this recent integration we believe that it offers useful information to teachers parents and researchers on some of the progress produced by their interaction Rating Scales and Checklists Lewis R. Early Identification of Children at Risk R.N. Emde, W.K. Frankenburg, J. Sullivan, 2013-12-01 This volume contains contributions that are interdisciplinary and international The editors believe this is an especially timely and promising enterprise for both sources of diversity are needed for improving our abilities to identify the young child at risk and to prevent disability In terms of disciplines the volume brings together papers by health care providers such as pediatricians and public health nurses as well as educators and psychologists Each of these groups works in dissimilar settings and faces dissimilar problems Health care providers seek simple identification procedures for use in busy primary care settings psychologists emphasize well constructed research designs and educators reflect the need for early identification and education Each of these specialist groups has something to offer the other but too often each tends to limit its publications and readings to its own discipline thus failing to capitalize on a wider scope of knowledge and practice We hope that this selection of papers will allow all readers addressing the early identification of children at risk to generate a more integrated interdisciplinary perspective We also hope this volume reflects the sense of excitement that we feel from a sharing of international perspectives There is no single approach to the early identification of children at risk that is universally applicable to all countries In addition approaches within each country vary because of availability of financial and human resources and differing expectations of local communities
