Reckless Fires:

Reckless Fires Kaye Wilson Klem, 1978 National Healths Michael Worton, Wilson Tagoe, 2013-07-04 In today's globalised world it is increasingly important to understand the otherness of different societies and their beliefs, histories and practices. This book focuses on a burning cultural issue: how concepts and constructions of gender and sexuality impact upon health, medicine and healthcare. Starting from the premise that health is neither a universal nor a unitary concept, it offers a series of interdisciplinary analyses of what sickness and well-being have been, are and can be. The originality of this book is its cross-cultural and trans-historical approach. Bringing together specially commissioned work by both major critical voices and young scholars in fields ranging from anthropology and art history to philosophy, political science and sociology, this volume challenges many traditional assumptions about gender, medicine and health care. Issues addressed include the politics and realities of female genital mutilation, sex work and migration, the portrayal of mothering in contemporary African writing, the representation of AIDS in literature, photography and the media, the place of gender in ancient Egyptian health papyri, the dramatisation of morality and sexual over-indulgence in Thai literature, the relationship between myths of menstruation and power in early modern England, the role of anger in traditional Chinese medicine and the ways in which both disease and sexual identities were redefined by cholera in the nineteenth century. The wide-ranging Introduction provides a historical and theoretical framework for what is defined here as Cultural Medicine, whilst fifteen original essays demonstrate from different perspectives that health is not merely a physiological and medical issue but also a cultural and ethical one. An invaluable research and study resource, this book is written in a clear and accessible style and will be of interest to the general reader as well as to students of all levels, to teachers of a wide range of disciplines and to specialist researchers of cultural studies and of medicine.

Feeling the heat: International perspectives on the prevention of wildfire ignition Janet Stanley, Alan March, James Ogloff, Jason Thompson, 2020-09-01 In the context of climate change, world population growth and crashing ecological systems, wildfire is often a catastrophic and traumatic event. Its impact can include loss of life, life-changing injuries, long-term psychological stress, increases in domestic violence, destruction of properties, business and livestock, long-term housing insecurity, increased insurance premiums, fire-fighting legal and health costs as well as significant changes and species losses in the natural environment. In Australia, an average of 4,500 wildfires occur weekly. Yet how to prevent these wildfires, 85% of which are caused by human activities, has received extraordinarily little attention. The current approach to the prevention of arson can be summarised as small in scale, uncoordinated and rarely evaluated. Feeling the heat: International perspectives on the prevention of wildfire ignition is the culmination of over a decade of research into wildfires and arson, taking an interdisciplinary approach to comprehensively understand the topic.

This book reviews current international knowledge and presents new findings on political spatial psychological socio ecological and socio economic risk factors It argues that if we are to reverse the increasing occurrence and severity of wildfires all prevention approaches must be utilised broadening from heavy reliance on environmental modification Such prevention measures range from the critical importance of reducing greenhouse gases to addressing the psychological and socio economic drivers of arson In particular it calls for a coordinated and collaborative approach across sectors including place based state and country coordination as well as an international body It will hold appeal for researchers and students from a range of disciplines and interests government planners and policymakers emergency services counsellors and NGOs and those in agriculture and forestry
