Red Hot Blues:

TV-A-Go-Go Jake Austen, 2005-07 From Elvis and a hound dog wearing matching tuxedos and the comic adventures of artificially produced bands to elaborate music videos and contrived reality show contests television as this critical look brilliantly shows has done a superb job of presenting the energy of rock in a fabulously entertaining but patently fake manner The dichotomy of fake and real music as it is portrayed on television is presented in detail through many generations of rock music the Monkees shared the charts with the Beatles Tupac and Slayer fans voted for corny American Idols and shows like Shindig and Soul Train somehow captured the unhinged energy of rock far more effectively than most long haired guitar smashing acts Also shown is how TV has often delighted in breaking the rules while still mostly playing by them Bo Diddley defied Ed Sullivan and sang rock and roll after he had been told not to the Chipmunks subversive antics prepared kids for punk rock and things got out of hand when Saturday Night Live invited punk kids to attend a taping of the band Fear Every aspect of the idiosyncratic history of rock and TV and their peculiar relationship is covered including cartoon rock music programming for African American audiences punk on television Michael Jackson's life on TV and the tortured history of MTV and its progeny

Blues and Evil Yahya Jongintaba, 2024-09-04 The term blues has traditionally conveyed an image of hard living hard drinking carousing singers and musicians grinding out melancholy tunes and evil lyrics Contesting that stereotypical notion this study argues that spiritual values are clearly reflected in the blues mythologized history folk theological language and philosophical speculation on the dual existence of good and evil By using a theomusicalogical approach Yahya Jongintaba formerly Jon Michael Spencer is able to push aside accepted attitudes and present a unique study of the blues and the culture that created it He reveals religious substance in this music's content and language that has been gradually obscured as the blues evolved from a simple rural music following Reconstruction to its present urban form The evidence strongly implies a fundamental religious concern for the same life issues expressed in orthodox religious music Spencer suggests that white blues scholars have tended to overlook the religious nature of the blues partly because they have not fully understood African American culture They have tended to give validity to the old southern folkloric belief that blues music was devil's music disregarding the ethos of the blues as it exists on the periphery of doctrinal Christianity where religious pondering as well as opposition to white oppression could be expressed behind a protective veil of music
