Regulation Of Haemoglobin Synthesis:

Regulation of Haemoglobin Synthesis J. Neuwirt, P. Ponka, 2012-12-06 Haemoglobin is one of the most important molecules in the animal kingdom. Its function is to carry oxygen to tissues. In lower invertebrates the blood pigment is present in the haemolymph and is not bound in cells. Later in the course of phylogenesis haemoglobin remains associated with cells which produce it and in this form it reaches the peripheral circulation. In higher organisms the haemoglobin production is thus determined by two main factors: haemoglobin synthesis in erythroid cells and the formation of these erythroid cells which depends on cell proliferation in haematopoietic organs. Human haemoglobin is made up of two chains which combine from four different polypeptide chains formed in varying ratios in different periods of the life cycle. During the life span of humans the following haemoglobins are formed: embryonic haemoglobins Gower 1 and 2, foetal haemoglobin F, and two adult haemoglobins A and A₂. α and β chains are part of the embryonic haemoglobins Gower 1, α 4 and 2, Gower 2, α 2 β 2. These haemoglobins predominate in embryos during the second month of pregnancy and at the end of the first trimester they are completely replaced by foetal haemoglobin F. Adult haemoglobin A consists of two α and two β chains and is the main component of red cells in adults. A relatively small component of red cells accounting for less than 2 % of the total haemoglobin is haemoglobin A₂. The Regulation of Erythropoiesis and Haemoglobin Synthesis Tomáš Trávníček, Jan Neuwirt, 1971. Studies on the Regulation of Hemoglobin Synthesis William Virya Zucker, 1968. Our hearts have evolved to be extremely efficient long lasting pumps that exquisitely match the needs of our bodies. This book is about how the heart does this: how can a heart pump the blood for up to 100 years while the best Formula 1 racing engine has a working life measured in hours? Why is the heart so efficient and how are worn out parts replaced while working? How does it generate the force to act as a pump? How is it controlled electrically and how can it repair itself? This book addresses these questions from physiological and molecular perspectives in language that aims to be accessible to all interested in biology and with liberal illustrations. The story of how the heart works is presented in the context of its origins. The book begins with a discussion of why the word heart is universally used as a metaphor for reason and emotion and traces its origins in modern and ancient languages. The last chapter offers advice on how to preserve the
