

POINT OF VIEW

according to my daughter,

a mosquito is a hummingbird.
& everything that has wings is kinfolk.
especially airplanes. in her mind,

a banana is a yellow moon. a small, green acorn is a turtle. & every object within view should be rewarded with praise. in our house,

we hug incense smoke and tickle the plants.
we pull the color out of language and make rainbow-like chatter. she reminds me that all living things have the right to experience laughter.

according to my daughter,

the number 5 is also an S. the letter B is the number 8 with a backbone. cat ears are flower petals.
hands cupped together can be a butterfly.

& we make drums out of every hard surface. motivate melody and mischief to flirt with the quiet. she gets up and dances after throwing her body on the floor, because all of it is a song.
