Regenerating England, 2016-08-29 In the inter war years there was much debate in Britain as to whether the best path to post World War I regeneration would be found in the promises of science and technology in continued and increased efficiency in specialization and professionalization or whether the future of the nation depended on a rediscovery of older and more authentic ways of doing things on a defiant anti modernism This debate on Britain s future was often conducted in terms of Englishness and the rebirth of a lost more spiritual village England However Englishness also entered inter war social thinking through eclectic assimilations of diverse traditions Prominent themes in the discourses on Britain s post war regeneration include national character citizenship fitness education utopia community and so on The chapters in the present volume address these themes and break new ground by examining debates well known in political and literary history through their relations to science medicine architecture and ideas of social and political health

Being Modern Robert Bud, Paul Greenhalgh, Frank James, Morag Shiach, 2018-10-05 In the early decades of the twentieth century engagement with science was commonly used as an emblem of modernity This phenomenon is now attracting increasing attention in different historical specialties Being Modern builds on this recent scholarly interest to explore engagement with science across culture from the end of the nineteenth century to approximately 1940 Addressing the breadth of cultural forms in Britain and the western world from the architecture of Le Corbusier to working class British science fiction Being Modern paints a rich picture Seventeen distinguished contributors from a range of fields including the cultural study of science and technology art and architecture English culture and literature examine the issues involved The book will be a valuable resource for students and a spur to scholars to further examination of culture as an interconnected web of which science is a critical part and to supersede such tired formulations as Science and culture

Pursuing the Unity of Science Harmke Kamminga, Geert Somsen, 2016-05-20 From 1918 to the late 1940s a host of influential scientists and intellectuals in Europe and North America were engaged in a number of far reaching unity of science projects In this period of deep social and political divisions scientists collaborated to unify sciences across disciplinary boundaries and to set up the international scientific community as a model for global political co operation They strove to align scientific and social objectives through rational planning and to promote unified science as the driving force of human civilization and progress This volume explores the unity of science movement providing a synthetic view of its pursuits and placing it in its historical context as a scientific and political force Through a coherent set of original case studies looking at the significance of various projects and strategies of unification the book highlights the great variety of manifestations of this endeavour These range from unifying nuclear physics to the evolutionary synthesis and from the democratization of scientific planning to the utopianism of H G Wells s world state At the same time the collection brings out the substantive links between these different pursuits especially in the form of interconnected networks of unification and the alignment of objectives among them Notably it shows that opposition to fascism using the instrument of unified science became the most urgent common goal in the 1930s and 1940s In addressing these issues the book makes visible important historical developments showing how scientists participated in and actively helped to create an interwar ideology of unification and bringing to light the cultural and political significance of this enterprise

Cinema Babel Markus Nornes, 2007 Uncovering the vital role of interpreters dubbers and subtitlers in global film Nornes examines the relationships between moving image media and translation and contends that film was a globalized medium from its beginning and that its transnational traffic has been greatly influenced by interpreters

Film: an Anthology Daniel Talbot,1975 An anthology of writings on film studies Documentary Film Carl Rollyson,2004-12-14 Documentary Film A Primer provides a succinct introduction to the nature of the documentary drawing on examples from the work of Robert Flaherty Dziga Vertov Leni Riefenstahl Woody Allen Warren Beatty Spalding Gray Cindy Sherman Susan Sontag and others The documentaries discussed cover a range of subjects including the Russian Revolution the Holocaust and the worlds of fashion and sports This incisive foray into the essentials of documentary is then buttressed by an in depth discussion of the career of Jill Craigie a British director writer who brought to the cinema an uncompromising socialist and feminist perspective during the Second World War How Craigie got her films produced by a major studio and why her work could not be replicated in postwar Britain reveal not only the way documentaries are made but also why they remain a controversial and problematic genre A selection of Rollyson s reviews of contemporary documentaries provides a model for discussing the genre Students and fans of documentaries will find his list of classic documentaries on VHS and DVD and his excerpts from other critics of the genre of special interest His topics for discussion section make this book a valuable resource for teachers as well

Shadows of Progress Patrick Russell,James Piers Taylor,2019-07-25 Britain emerged from war a changed country facing new social industrial and cultural challenges Its documentary film tradition established in the 1930s and 1940s around legendary figures such as Grierson Rotha and Jennings continued evolving utilising technical advances displaying robust aesthetic concerns and benefiting from the entry into the industry of wealthy commercial sponsors Thousands of films were seen by millions worldwide Received wisdom has been that British documentary went into swift decline after the war resurrected only by Free Cinema and the arrival of television documentary Shadows of Progress demolishes these simplistic assumptions presenting instead a complex and nuanced picture of the sponsored documentary in flux Patrick Russell and James Piers Taylor explore the reasons for the period's critical neglect and address the sponsorship production distribution and key themes of British documentary They paint a vivid picture of institutions from public bodies to multinational industries constantly redefining their relationships with film as a form of enlightened public relations Many of the issues that these films addressed could not be more topical today the rise of environmentalism the balance of state and industry individual and community a nation and a world travelling from bust to boom and back again In the second part of the book contributors from the curatorial and academic world provide career biographies of key film makers of the period From Lindsay Anderson's lesser known early career to neglected film makers like John Krish Sarah Erulkar Eric Marquis and Derrick Knight a kaleidoscopic picture is built up of the myriad relationships of artist and sponsor

The Documentary Film Nina Barbara Lott, 1981 New Documentary Stella Bruzzi, 2000 Bruzzi relates contemporary cinema to the documentary tradition exploring questions of authorship spectatorship and truth in the context of issues of race gender and performance
