Rousseau's Counter-Enlightenment Graeme Garrard, 2012-02-01 Arguing that the question of Jean Jacques Rousseau's relationship to the Enlightenment has been eclipsed and seriously distorted by his association with the French Revolution Graeme Garrard presents the first book length case that shows Rousseau as the pivotal figure in the emergence of Counter Enlightenment thought Viewed in the context in which he actually lived and wrote from the middle of the eighteenth century to his death in 1778 it is apparent that Rousseau categorically rejected the Enlightenment republic of letters in favor of his own republic of virtue The philosophes placing faith in reason and natural human sociability and subjecting religion to systematic criticism and doubt naively minimized the deep tensions and complexities of collective life and the power disintegrative forces posed to social order Rousseau believed that the ever precarious social order could only be achieved artificially by manufacturing sentiments of sociability reshaping individuals to identify with common interests instead of their own selfish interests The Passionate Society Lisa Hill, 2006-01-13 Adam Ferguson 1723 1816 was a major figure of the Scottish Enlightenment whose thought was in many respects original and distinctive This book is a study of his ideas and of the intellectual forces that shaped them Though somewhat overlooked in the nineteenth century Ferguson was rescued from obscurity in the first half of the twentieth century by scholars interested in the origins of sociology and early critiques of modernity Ferguson's interest in the mechanics of social life and especially social change led him to many groundbreaking insights In fact he is sometimes identified as the Father of Modern Sociology In addition to exploring whether or not he merits this title this study examines the whole of Ferguson's thought as a system and includes his moral and faculty psychology historiography theology politics and social science Ferguson is distinguished by his deep appreciation of the complexity of the human condition his study of society is based on the belief that it is not only reason but the unseen unplanned sub rational and visceral forces that keep the human universe in motion Ferguson's appreciation of this fact and his ability to make social science of it is his major achievement Rousseau and Weber J.G. Merquior, 2013-04-15 Jean Jacques Rousseau and Max Weber central thinkers to the discussion of political legitimacy represent two very different stages and forms of social theory early modern political philosophy and classical sociology In these studies Dr Merquior describes and assesses their individual contributions to the understanding of the concept of political legitimacy Dr Merquior compares Rousseau and Weber to a handful of other major theorists and highlights the contemporary prospects of the alternatives between democratic participation and bureaucratism This book was first published in 1980 Christianity & Western Thought Colin Brown, Steve Wilkens, Alan G. Environmental Skill Mark Coeckelbergh, 2015-02-20 Today it is widely recognized that we face urgent and serious environmental problems and we know much about them yet we do very little What explains this lack of motivation and change Why is it so hard to change our lives This book addresses this question by means of a philosophical inquiry into the conditions of possibility for environmental change It discusses how we can become more motivated to do environmental good and what kind of knowledge we need for this and explores the relations between motivation knowledge and modernity After reviewing a broad range of possible philosophical and psychological responses to environmental apathy and inertia the author argues for moving away from a modern focus on either detached reason and control Stoicism and Enlightenment reason or the natural the sentiments and the authentic Romanticism both of which make possible disengaging and alienating modes of relating to our environment Instead he develops the notion of environmental skill a concept that bridges the gap between knowledge and action re interprets environmental virtue and suggests an environmental ethics centered on experience know how and skillful engagement with our environment The author then explores the implications of this ethics for our lives it changes the way we think about and deal with health food animals energy climate change politics and technology Human Needs and Politics

Ross Fitzgerald, 2016-06-21 Human Needs and Politics is a collection of papers that examines the intercorrelation between political trends and the fulfillment of society's human needs The title discusses the concepts of human needs wants and politics Next the selection details some theories that will shed light into the mechanisms of human needs politics interaction The text also reviews Maslow's hierarchy of needs along with Marx's opinion on human needs The book will be of great interest to political scientists sociologists and behavioral scientists Redemptive Change R. R. Reno, 2002-04-01 Change is a daily fact of life one that people often have a hard time embracing But when change does come people do want it to be meaningful to them and to have some enduring value for their lives In Redemptive Change R R Reno argues that modern culture fails to offer people the hope of meaningful and enduring change He shows how modern philosophers have argued that people are self sufficient that they do not need God to complete their identities and that whatever changes they experience are momentary and of no ultimate significance Countering modern philosophy Reno contends that the only meaningful change occurs in Christ At the moment of atonement people experience an enduring change that has momentous consequences for their lives We matter he says only insofar as we are more dependent upon and changed by Christ R R Reno is Associate Professor of Theology Creighton University Omaha Nebraska and co author of Heroism and the Christian Life Reclaiming Excellence The Government of Childhood K. Smith, 2014-10-06 Grounded in the Foucauldian literature on governmentality and drawing on a broad range of disciplines this book examines the government of childhood in the West from the early modern period to the present The book deals with three key time periods and examines shifts in the conceptualization and regulation of childhood and child rearing The X-Files and Philosophy Robert Arp, 2017-04-07 In The X Files and Philosophy thirty six fearless philosophers seek for the truth which is out there in here at least somewhere or as the postmodernists claim nowhere One big issue is whether the weird and unexplained happenings including the existence of entities unknown to traditional science might really exist And if they did what would be the proper way to behave towards them Some of these entities seem to flout conventional laws of nature but perhaps we need to allow for different as yet undiscovered laws If such fabulous entities really exist what do we owe them And if they don't exist why do we imagine they do In The X Files regular science is represented by Scully and usually turns out to be wrong while open minded credulity or pseudoscience is represented by Mulder and usually turns out to be right or at least somehow on the right track Scully demands objective repeatable evidence and she usually gets it with Mulder's help in astounding and unwelcome ways What lessons should we take from the finding of The X Files that respectable science is nearly always wrong and outrageous speculative imagination nearly always right Georges Cuvier Dorinda Outram, 2022-02-06 This book first published in 1984 examines the lifetime of Georges Cuvier and in his constant and varying struggles to retain his position both as a politician and as a leading naturalist we find displayed almost all of the political tensions of Restoration France Our understanding of the new French intellectual elite is enhanced if we can explain what sort of power this group wielded and how it related to the structure of politics as a whole Cuvier's career epitomises this relationship to the highest degree Examination of the building of his career under the Directory and Empire offers many new insights into the way the expanding market for science the restructuring of society as a whole and the moral authority of science itself could be utilised as resources in the making of a reputation The influence of scientific competition and controversy on Cuvier's scientific work is examined at length and it is argued that they exerted a decisive effect on the structure of his biological and geological thinking Media and the Government of Populations Philip Dearman, Cathy Greenfield, Peter Williams, 2018-08-12 This book deals with the social cultural and especially political significance of media by shifting from the usual focus on the public sphere and publics and paying attention to populations It describes key moments where populations of different sorts have been subject to formative and diverse projects of governing in which communication has been key It brings together governmentality studies with the study of media practices and communication technologies Chapters consider print culture and the new political technology of individuals digital economies as places where populations are formed known and managed as productive resources workplaces schools clinics and homes as sites of governmental objectives and how to appropriately link communication technologies and practices with politics Through these chapters Philip Dearman Cathy Greenfield and Peter Williams demonstrate the value of considering communication in terms of the governmentof populations

The Oxford Handbook of European Romanticism Paul Hamilton,2016-01-14 TThe Oxford Handbook to European Romanticism brings together leading scholars in the field to examine the intellectual literary philosophical and political elements of European Romanticism The book focuses on the cultural history of the period extending from the French Revolution to the uprisings of 1848 It begins with a series of chapters examining key texts written by major writers in languages including French German Italian Spanish Russian Hungarian Greek and Polish amongst others A second section then explores the naturally inter disciplinary quality of Romanticism exemplified by the different discourses with which writers of the time set up an internal comparative dynamic These chapters highlight the sense a discourse gives of being written knowledgeably against other pretenders to completeness or comprehensiveness of self understanding of the time Discourses typically advance their own claims to resume European culture collaborating with and at the same time trying to assimilate each other in the process The main examples featured here are history geography drama theology language philosophy political theory the sciences and the media Each chapter offers an original and individual interpretation of an inherently comparative world of individual writers and the discursive idioms to which they are historically subject Together the forty one chapters provide a comprehensive and provocative overview of European Romanticism
