How do these take forward established debates on women's place in sporting culture and what novel approaches do they suggest? How can our appreciation of fashion, travel, food and medical history be advanced by looking at women's involvement in sport? How can we use some of the current ideas and methodologies in the recent literature on the history and sociology of sport in order to look afresh at women's participation? Jean Williams's original research on these topics and more will be a useful resource for scholars in the fields of sports, women's studies, history and sociology.

Black Sheep: The Hidden Benefits of Being Bad Richard Stephens, 2015-06-18 Richard Stephens became the focus of international media attention in 2009 for his research on the psychological benefits of swearing as a response to pain. Now fresh from winning the 2014 Wellcome Trust Science Writing Prize, Richard's first popular science book uncovers other pieces of surprising and occasionally bizarre scientific enquiry showing that what we at first perceive as bad can in fact be good. More pub conversation than science book, Richard's writing style is very accessible, both engaging and humorous. Think: wasting time is bad. Not always. Research shows that taking time out can help you solve difficult problems. And if you can't be bothered tidying up, well, fine: research shows that people are more creative in a messy environment. Swearing is rude, but research shows that in some situations it can be a form of politeness. Swearing can also be used as a tool of persuasion. Black Sheep casts a slant on a range of human experiences from life to death, sex to romance, from speed thrills to halting boredom, and from drinking alcohol in moderation to headily excessive bad language. This is a fascinating left-field tour of the world of psychological science. Get ready for the many hidden benefits of being bad that you really won't have seen coming.

British Sports Cars of the 1950s and '60s James Taylor, 2014-05-10 E-type, Jaguar, Triumph Spitfire, MGA, Austin Healey: nobody built sports cars like British manufacturers in the 1950s and 60s. There was something very special about the combination of low-slung, open two-seater bodywork and spartan interior, a slick sporting gearchange and a throaty exhaust note. This was wind in the hair motoring, and it was affordable by the average young man at least until he got married and had a family. MG and Triumph stood out as the market leaders, but many other companies thrived, from luxury manufacturers like Jaguar and even Daimler to other more affordable marques. This colourfully illustrated history tells the exciting story of the British sports car in the 1950s and 60s.
