heraldic practices defy assumptions about clearly demarcated social practices that belonged to high noble as opposed to low urban culture Townspeople's perceptions of coats of arms paralleled those of the nobility as they readily interpreted and carefully curated them as visual expressions of identity These perceptions allowed townspeople of all ranks as well as noble outsiders to use heraldry and its display along with its defacement and destruction in manuscripts spaces such as town houses public monuments halls and churches and performances like processions and joyous entries to address perennial problems of urban society in the Middle Ages The coats of arms of burgesses guilds and cities were communicative means of individual and collective representation social and political legitimization conducting and resolving conflicts and the pursuit of elevated status in the urban hierarchy Likewise heraldic communication negotiated the all important relationship between the city and wider extramural society from the commercial interests of citizens to their collective ties to the ruler

The Theatre of Death Jennifer Woodward, 1997 English royal funeral ceremony from Mary Queen of Scots to James I gives fascinating insight into the relationship between power and ritual at the renaissance court This book represents the first detailed study into English royal funeral ceremonies of the period building on earlier scholarship dealing with the French royal funeral and with the social history of death and burial in early modern England Funeral rituals are approached as performances and placed in their political religious and broader cultural contexts showing them to be a microcosm of cultural change The impact of the Reformation with its strong iconophobic strain on a ritual process which was centred on the display of a life sized image of the dead monarch is explored Later the counter influence of the Arminianism and Continental art is considered in relation to the apotheosis of the theatre of death under the early Stuarts with particular reference to the funeral of James I Earlier individual funeral occasions are also addressed with varied focus The author shows how the obsequies of Elizabeth I were used to help establish the new Stuart dynasty the sudden death of the young Henry Stuart heir to the throne led to a funeral quite different in atmosphere and political purpose The death rituals of Mary Queen of Scots both the ceremonies staged in the wake of her execution and the monuments and funeral performances created years later by her son James are analysed in depth the emergent picture of the deliberate manipulation of the Scottish Queen's posthumous image provides a fascinating insight into the relationship between power and ritual at the renaissance court Dr JENNIFER WOODWARD gained her Ph D from the University of Warwick
