

Public Policy Evaluation

- Policy evaluation assesses the effectiveness of a public policy in terms of its perceived intentions and results. It is a reactive experience.
- Lawrence Mohr write essence of evaluation as “what did happen after implementing the program with what would have happened had the program not been implemented”.
- Evaluation exercise can bring policy issue back into decision making arena.
- Without policy evaluation both the credibility of the policy and the accountability of those individuals and institutions responsible for its development remain uncertain.

to Do Public Policy offers a guide to students and practitioners on how to improve problem solving with policies in a political world. It integrates insights from applied policy analysis and studies of the policy process to develop a framework that conceives policy making as structured by two spheres of action: the engine room of specialists and experts in government agencies, NGOs, research organizations etc. on the one hand, and the political superstructure of politicians, key public stakeholders and the public on the other hand. Understanding the different logics of the engine room and the superstructure is key for successful policy making. The dual structure of policy making provides a perspective on policy analysis: interactive policy analysis and policy making, actor-centred policy making that moves from the focus on individual and specific measures towards understanding and shaping the relation and interaction between policy interventions, the institutional context and the stakeholders involved or affected. Part I of the book presents the basic analytical concepts needed to understand the policy process and the structures and dynamics involved in it, as well as to understand how and why actors behave the way they do and how to engage with different types of actors. Part II moves further into the nuts and bolts of policy making, including policy design, implementation and evaluation. Part III introduces and explores three key aspects of the capacity to make good policies: engagement with stakeholders, the process of policy coordination in a context of interdependence and the role of institutions.
