Compensating Permanent Workplace Injuries Mark A. Peterson, 1998 Workers in California experiencing injuries at work that result in permanent partial disabilities (PPD) are eligible to receive compensation. The workers' benefits, doctors' and attorneys' fees, and the system that processes the hundreds of thousands of annual claims cost employers billions of dollars each year. This report evaluates the workers' compensation system by examining its efficiency and the adequacy and equity of its benefits and suggests system reforms. The authors conducted interviews with system participants and found that the system is still troubled by many of the same problems that plagued it before the 1989 and 1993 reforms. It remains overly costly, complex, and litigious while delivering modest benefits. The authors estimated the wage losses of PPD claimants in 1991-93 and found that even after five years the injured workers earned considerably less than controls. In addition, injured workers experience considerable time out of work, not just immediately after the injury but also after the initial return to work. The authors identified particular problems among claims categorized by the workers' compensation system as minor. The vast majority of claims for this group have wage replacement rates that were the lowest. Reform proposals include an elective fast track to streamline claims processing and a revision to the disability rating schedule to improve the relationship between wage loss and benefits paid.

Discovery Management James S. Kakalik, Judicial Conference of the United States, 1998 The Civil Justice Reform Act of 1990 (CJRA) required that each federal district court develop a case management plan to reduce costs and delay. The legislation also created a pilot program to test six principles of case management and required an independent evaluation to assess their effects. After the main evaluation report was completed, the Advisory Committee on Civil Rules of the Judicial Conference of the United States asked RAND to conduct further analyses of the CJRA evaluation data to see if additional light could be shed on discovery management.

Punitive Damages in Financial Injury Jury Verdicts Erik Moller, Nicholas Michael Pace, Stephen J. Carroll, 1997 This report provides the technical details of an Institute for Civil Justice analysis of trends and patterns in punitive damage awards in financial injury cases in selected jurisdictions during the period 1985 through 1994. The jurisdictions include all state trial courts of general jurisdiction in the states of California and New York, Cook County, Illinois, Chicago, the St. Louis, Missouri metropolitan area, and Harris County, Texas, Houston. These data are supplemented by information obtained from the Administrative Office of the Alabama Courts for verdicts reached in that state's trial courts of general jurisdiction during the period 1992 to 1997. The study also estimates what percentage of the financial injury punitive awards in the database would have been affected by caps of various sizes and how the caps would have affected the total amount of punitive damages awarded in such cases.
