

A detailed illustration in a woodcut style. In the foreground, a person wearing a wide-brimmed hat and a dark coat is seated, looking out towards a coastal town. The town features several buildings, including a prominent white house with a chimney, and is situated along a body of water. Several small boats are visible on the water. The background shows a hilly landscape with more buildings and trees. The overall scene suggests a historical or literary setting.

Reciprocal Influences Literary Production Distribution And Consumption In America:

Reciprocal Influences Steven Fink, Susan S. Williams, 1999 The essays in this volume represent renewed interest in the history of the American book Inspired by the work of William Charvat the contributors trace the complex web of reciprocal influences among authors readers and the publishing trade in nineteenth and early twentieth century America American Literature and the Culture of Reprinting, 1834-1853 Meredith L. McGill, 2013-10-11 The antebellum period has long been identified with the belated emergence of a truly national literature And yet as Meredith L McGill argues a mass market for books in this period was built and sustained through what we would call rampant literary piracy a national literature developed not despite but because of the systematic copying of foreign works Restoring a political dimension to accounts of the economic grounds of antebellum literature McGill unfolds the legal arguments and political struggles that produced an American culture of reprinting and held it in place for two crucial decades In this culture of reprinting the circulation of print outstripped authorial and editorial control McGill examines the workings of literary culture within this market shifting her gaze from first and authorized editions to reprints and piracies from the form of the book to the intersection of book and periodical publishing and from a national literature to an internally divided and transatlantic literary marketplace Through readings of the work of Dickens Poe and Hawthorne McGill seeks both to analyze how changes in the conditions of publication influenced literary form and to measure what was lost as literary markets became centralized and literary culture became stratified in the early 1850s American Literature and the Culture of Reprinting 1834 1853 delineates a distinctive literary culture that was regional in articulation and transnational in scope while questioning the grounds of the startlingly recent but nonetheless powerful equation of the national interest with the extension of authors rights

Nineteenth-Century American Women Write Religion Mary McCartin Wearn, 2016-05-06 Nineteenth century American women s culture was immersed in religious experience and female authors of the era employed representations of faith to various cultural ends Focusing primarily on non canonical texts this collection explores the diversity of religious discourse in nineteenth century women s literature The contributors examine fiction political writings poetry and memoirs by professional authors social activists and women of faith including Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Angelina and Sarah Grimk Louisa May Alcott Rebecca Harding Davis Harriet E Wilson Sarah Piatt Julia Ward Howe Julia A J Foote Lucy Mack Smith Rebecca Cox Jackson and Fanny Newell Embracing the complexities of lived religion in women s culture both its repressive and its revolutionary potential Nineteenth Century American Women Write Religion articulates how American women writers adopted the language of religious sentiment for their own cultural political or spiritual ends American Literature in Transition, 1820-1860: Volume 2 Justine S. Murison, 2022-06-23 The essays in American Literature in Transition 1820 1860 offer a new approach to the antebellum era one that frames the age not merely as the precursor to the Civil War but as indispensable for understanding present crises around such issues as race imperialism climate change and the role of literature in American society The essays make visible and usable the period's fecund imagined futures futures that certainly included disunion but not only disunion Tracing the historical contexts literary forms and formats global coordinates and present reverberations of antebellum literature and culture the essays in this volume build on existing scholarship while indicating exciting new avenues for research and teaching Taken together the essays in this volume make this era's literature relevant for a new generation of students and scholars

The Scarlet Letter and Other Writings (Second International Student Edition) (Norton Critical Editions) Nathaniel Hawthorne, 2017-02 This perennially popular Norton Critical Edition has been revised to reflect the most current scholarly approaches to The Scarlet Letter Hawthorne's most widely read novel as well as to the five short prose works Mrs Hutchinson Endicott and the Red Cross Young Goodman Brown The Minister's Black Veil and The Birthmark that closely relate to the 1850 novel This Second Norton Critical Edition also includes Revised and expanded explanatory footnotes a new preface and a note on the text by Leland S Person Key passages from Hawthorne's notebooks and letters that suggest the close relationship between his private and public writings Seven new critical essays by Brook Thomas Michael Ryan Thomas R Mitchell Jay Grossman Jamie Barlowe John Ronan and John F Birk A Chronology and revised and expanded Selected Bibliography Negotiating Copyright Martin T.

Buinicki, 2014-02-04 This book examines how debates over copyright law in the United States during the nineteenth century particularly over the lack of an international copyright law intersected with the business practices and political and artistic beliefs of American authors These debates shaped a discourse of literary property rights that forced authors to negotiate their copyrights not only with their publishers but with their readers as well The author argues that the act of taking out a copyright was more than a mere legal mechanism marking a transition from amateur to professional or artist to businessperson Taking out a copyright had a profound impact on how audiences viewed authors how authors perceived their profession and how they represented individual rights and property ownership within their texts The book is unique in the scope of its research tracking developments from the 1820s through the 1890s and in the way it approaches the work and careers of well-known authors The author employs research from the American Antiquarian Society the Harriet Beecher Stowe Center and the Government and Special Collections at the University of Iowa drawing on an array of documents including newspaper editorials legislative hearings court decisions and the public and private writing of James Fenimore Cooper Walt Whitman Harriet Beecher Stowe Samuel Clemens and Emily Dickinson to demonstrate how authors found themselves in an uneasy opposition to their reading public Henry James and the Media Arts of Modernity June Hee Chung, 2019-03-20 Henry James and the Media Arts of Modernity Commercial Cosmopolitanism turns to the author's late fiction letters and essays to investigate his contribution to the development of an American cosmopolitan culture both in popular and high art The book contextualizes James's writing within a broader cultural and social history to uncover relationships among increasingly sensory focused media technologies mass consumer practices and developments in literary style when they spread to Europe at the inception of the era of big business Combining cultural studies with neoclassical Marxism and postcolonial theory the study addresses a gap in scholarship concerning the rise of literary modernism as a cosmopolitan phenomenon Although scholars have traditionally acknowledged the international character of artists participation in this movement when analyzing the contributions of American expatriate writers in Europe they generally assume an unequal degree of reciprocity in transatlantic cultural exchange with European artists being more influential than American ones This book argues that James identifies a cultural form of American imperialism that emerged out of a commercialized version of cosmopolitanism Yet the author appropriates the arts of modernity when he realizes that art generated with the mechanized principles of mass production spurred a diverse range of aesthetic responses to other early twentieth century technological and organizational innovations

Capital Letters David Dowling, 2009 In the 1840s and 1850s as the market revolution swept the United States the world of literature confronted for the first time the gaudy glare of commercial culture Amid growing technological sophistication and growing artistic rejection of the soullessness of materialism authorship passed from an era of patronage and entered the clamoring free market In this setting romantic notions of what it meant to be an author came under attack and authors became professionals In lively and provocative writing David Dowling moves beyond a study of the emotional toll that this crisis in self definition had on writers to examine how three sets of authors in pairings of men and women Harriet Wilson and Henry David Thoreau Fanny Fern and Walt Whitman and Rebecca Harding Davis and Herman Melville engaged with and transformed the book market What were their critiques of the capitalism that was transforming the world around them How did they respond to the changing marketplace that came to define their very success as authors How was the role of women influenced by these conditions Capital Letters concludes with a fascinating and daring transhistorical comparison of how two superstar authors Herman Melville in the nineteenth century and Stephen King today have negotiated the shifting terrain of the literary marketplace The result is an important contribution to our understanding of print culture and literary work

The Book Worlds of East Asia and Europe, 1450-1850 Joseph P. McDermott, Peter Burke, 2015-10-01 This volume provides the first comparative survey of the relations between the two most active book worlds in Eurasia between 1450 and 1850 Prominent scholars in book history explore different approaches to publishing printing and book culture They discuss the extent of technology transfer and book distribution between the two regions and show how much book historians of East Asia and Europe can learn from one another by raising new questions exploring remarkable similarities and differences in these regions production distribution and consumption of books The chapters in turn show different ways of writing transnational comparative history Whereas recent problems confronting research on European books can instruct researchers on East Asian book production so can the privileged role of noncommercial publications in the East Asian textual record highlight for historians of the European book the singular contribution of commercial printing and market demands to the making of the European printed record Likewise

although production growth was accompanied in both regions by a wider distribution of books woodblock technology's simplicity and mobility allowed for a shift in China of its production and distribution sites farther down the hierarchy of urban sites than was common in Europe And the different demands and consumption practices within these two regions expanding markets led to different genre preferences and uses as well as to the growth of distinctive female readerships A substantial introduction pulls the work together and the volume ends with an essay that considers how these historical developments shape the present book worlds of Eurasia This splendid volume offers expert new insight into the ways of producing financing distributing and reading printed books in early modern Europe and East Asia This is comparative history at its best which leaves us with a better understanding of each context and of the challenges common to book cultures across space and time

Ann Blair author of Too Much to Know Managing Scholarly Information before the Modern Age and professor of history Harvard University This engrossing account of the history of the book by leading specialists on the European and East Asian publishing worlds takes stock of what we know and how much we still need to know about the places that books had in the lives of our early modern forebears Each chapter is masterful state of the field coverage of its subject and together they set a new standard for future studies of the book East and West Timothy Brook author of The Troubled Empire China in the Yuan and Ming Dynasties

Writing for Immortality Anne E. Boyd, 2010-01-01 Before the Civil War American writers such as Catharine Maria Sedgwick and Harriet Beecher Stowe had established authorship as a respectable profession for women But though they had written some of the most popular and influential novels of the century they accepted the taboo against female writers regarding themselves as educators and businesswomen During and after the Civil War some women writers began to challenge this view seeing themselves as artists writing for themselves and for posterity Writing for Immortality studies the lives and works of four prominent members of the first generation of American women who strived for recognition as serious literary artists Louisa May Alcott Elizabeth Stuart Phelps Elizabeth Stoddard and Constance Fenimore Woolson Combining literary criticism and cultural history Anne E Boyd examines how these authors negotiated the masculine connotation of artist imagining a space for themselves in the literary pantheon Redrawing the boundaries between male and female literary spheres and between American and British literary traditions Boyd shows how these writers rejected the didacticism of the previous generation of women writers and instead drew their inspiration from the most prominent literary writers of their day Emerson James Barrett Browning and Eliot Placing the works and experiences of Alcott Phelps Stoddard and Woolson within contemporary discussions about genius and the American artist Boyd reaches a sobering conclusion Although these women were encouraged by the democratic ideals implicit in such concepts they were equally discouraged by lingering prejudices about their applicability to women

Grief and Genre in American Literature, 1790-1870 Desirée Henderson, 2016-04-15 Focusing on the role of genre in the formation of dominant conceptions of death and dying Desirée Henderson examines literary texts and social spaces devoted to death and mourning in eighteenth and nineteenth century America Henderson shows how William Hill Brown Susanna Rowson and Hannah Webster borrowed from and challenged funeral sermon conventions in their novelistic portrayals of the deaths of fallen women contrasts the eulogies for George Washington with William Apess's Eulogy for King Philip to expose conflicts between national ideology and indigenous history examines Frederick Douglass's use of the slave cemetery to represent the costs of slavery for African American families suggests that the ideas about democracy materialized in Civil War cemeteries and monuments influenced Walt Whitman's war elegies and offers new contexts for analyzing Elizabeth Stuart Phelps's The Gates Ajar and Emily Dickinson's poetry as works that explore the consequences of female writers claiming authority over the mourning process Informed by extensive archival research Henderson's study eloquently speaks to the ways in which authors adopted revised or rejected the conventions of memorial literature choices that disclose their location within decisive debates about appropriate gender roles and sexual practices national identity and citizenship the consequences of slavery the nature of democratic representation and structures of authorship and literary authority
