Radiation Carcinogenesis and DNA Alterations Frederic J. Burns, 2013-03-13 This volume is based on the proceedings of an Advanced Study Institute ASI sponsored by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization NATO held October 1984 in Corfu Greece The meeting received financial support from the United States Department of Energy and the United States National Cancer Institute A plethora of recent developments in the molecular biology of DNA are leading to new ideas concerning how DNA alterations might be involved in the mechanism of radiation carcinogenesis Evidence is accumulating that genetic sequences known as oncogenes are involved in the translation of DNA molecular alterations into phenotypic changes associated with malignant cells For example a chromosome break often occurs at or near the location of a specific oncogene in Burkitt's lymphoma Such breaks could represent initial lesions in a translocation process that activates the oncogene by inserting it at a new location eg near an active promoter Since breakage of the DNA is one of the principal ways that ionizing radiation affects mammalian cells these new molecular ideas suggest ways that radiation induced DNA breaks might be involved as initial events in carcinogenesis While the possible involvement of oncogenes in radiation carcinogenesis is an exciting new development a direct sequential connection between early molecular changes in DNA and later tumor development has yet to be established Accordingly there is a tremendous need for experimental studies of how DNA alterations might convert normal cells to cancer cells

 CHALL,Vicki A. Jacobs,Luke E. Baldwin,Jeanne Sternlicht Chall,2009-06-30 How severe is the literacy gap in our schools Why does the nine year old child from a culturally disadvantaged background so often fall victim to the fourth grade slump Although the cognitive abilities of these children at risk may be consistent with the norm their literacy development lags far behind that of other children In The Reading Crisis the renowned reading specialist Jeanne Chall and her colleagues examine the causes of this disparity and suggest some remedies Using Chall s widely applied model of reading development the authors examine the strengths and weaknesses in the reading writing and language development of children from low income families in an attempt to identify the onset of their difficulties They show how in the transition from learning the medium to understanding the message the demands on children s reading skills become significantly more complex The crucial point is fourth grade when students confront texts containing unfamiliar words and ideas that are beyond the range of their own experience According to Chall s findings the lack of specific literacy skills not cognitive factors explains the deceleration in the reading and writing development of low income children The authors outline an active role for the schools in remedying weaknesses in literacy development and give suggestions for the home and the community Their recommendations address both practical issues in instruction and the teacher student dynamic that fosters literacy
