Relative deprivation and social comparison Social Sciences and Humanities Research Council of Canada, University of Western Ontario. Faculty of Social Science, Social Comparison Jerry Suls, Thomas Ashby Wills, 2024-05-01 Assessment of abilities opinions and overall feelings of self worth are commonly acknowledged to be influenced by how one's attributes compare with those of other people. In contemporary social psychology, this process is known as social comparison or interpersonal comparison. Originally published in 1991, this volume presents the most recent developments in this field of study at the time. As described in the chapters, the theory has gone through several iterations taken on new problems and research paradigms and reached out to other social psychological areas of study. Some of this research addresses questions that are logical extensions of Festinger's theory; some consider questions that derive from entirely different ways of construing the comparison process from Festinger's original approach. Although all questions are not settled, the work presented here shows how far the original social comparison theory has evolved and suggests where the next insights are likely to be found. Today it can be read in its historical context.
