Rostow Kennedy And The Rhetoric Of Foreign Aid:

Rostow, Kennedy, and the Rhetoric of Foreign Aid Kimber Charles Pearce, 2001 Drawing upon Rostow's writings, public speeches, congressional testimony, personal interviews, and recently declassified documents, Pearce examines the economist's protracted campaign to convince policymakers to apply his theory of economic growth to the development aid initiatives of Presidents Dwight D. Eisenhower, John F. Kennedy, and Lyndon B. Johnson.

Cult of the Irrelevant Michael C. Desch, 2021-09-28 How professionalization and scholarly rigor made social scientists increasingly irrelevant to US national security policy. To mobilize America's intellectual resources to meet the security challenges of the post-9/11 world, US Secretary of Defense Robert M. Gates observed that we must again embrace eggheads and ideas. But the gap between national security policymakers and international relations scholars has become a chasm. In Cult of the Irrelevant, Michael Desch traces the history of the relationship between the Beltway and the Ivory Tower from World War I to the present day. Recounting key Golden Age academic strategists such as Thomas Schelling and Walt Rostow, Desch's narrative shows that social science research became most oriented toward practical problem solving during times of war, and that scholars returned to less relevant work during peacetime. Social science disciplines like political science rewarded work that was methodologically sophisticated over scholarship that engaged with the messy realities of national security policy and academic culture increasingly turned away from the job of solving real world problems. In the name of scientific objectivity, academics today frequently engage only in basic research that they hope will somehow trickle down to policymakers. Drawing on the lessons of this history, as well as a unique survey of current and former national security policymakers, Desch offers concrete recommendations for scholars who want to shape government work. The result is a rich intellectual history and an essential wake-up call to a field that has lost its way.

Foreign Aid Carol Lancaster, 2008-09-15 A twentieth-century innovation, foreign aid has become a familiar and even expected element in international relations. But scholars and government officials continue to debate why countries provide it: some claim that it is primarily a tool of diplomacy; some argue that it is largely intended to support development in poor countries; and still others point out its myriad newer uses. Carol Lancaster effectively puts this dispute to rest here by providing the most comprehensive answer yet to the question of why governments give foreign aid. She argues that because of domestic politics in aid-giving countries, it has always been and will continue to be used to achieve a mixture of different goals. Drawing on her expertise in both comparative politics and international relations, and on her experience as a former public official, Lancaster provides five in-depth case studies: the United States, Japan, France, Germany, and Denmark, that demonstrate how domestic politics and international pressures combine to shape how and why donor governments give aid. In doing so, she explores the impact on foreign aid of political institutions, interest groups, and the ways governments organize their giving. Her findings provide essential insight for scholars of international relations and comparative politics, as well as anyone involved with foreign aid or foreign policy.

Indigenizing the Cold War Sinae Hyun, 2023 The Border Patrol Police BPP of Thailand was formed as a United States CIA s paramilitary intelligence force in the early 1950s In the early 1960s changes in Thailand s political leadership and the US government s strategies for fighting the spread of communism in Southeast Asia led to a transformation of the BPP The organization became a civic action agency supported by the US Agency for International Development and the Thai monarchy Its civic actions pinned on advancing anticommunist modernization civilian counterinsurgency and royalist nationalism soon extended from the margins to the center of Thailand and contributed to building the border of Thainess khwam pen thai The growing tension between the royalist network consisting of military and rightwing groups and the democratization movements culminated in a massacre On October 6 1976 the Village Scout a rural vigilante group that the BPP created through its civic actions and the Police Aerial Reinforcement Unit PARU a subunit of the BPP attacked peaceful protesters at Thammasat University The success of a military coup on the same day solidified the victory of the royalist network and it would continue to dominate Thai politics and society into the post Cold War era Through a study of the Border Patrol Police s transformations Indigenizing the Cold War shows how the Thai ruling elite unfailingly pursued their nation building With an introduction of the indigenization concept and an in depth analysis of postcolonial nation building this work challenges conventional Cold War studies The Cold War in Thailand was not always and only about an ideological conflict between the communist and anticommunist It was a war between the local ruling elite and the people each pushing forward their visions for constructing a new nation state The indigenization framework helps one to see the nature and impacts of the collaboration between global superpowers and the Asian local ruling elite it exposes an arrangement that took advantage of the American Cold War to legitimize and continue their authoritarian regimes

The Ideological Scramble for Africa Frank Gerits, 2023-03-15 In The Ideological Scramble for Africa Frank Gerits examines how African leaders in the 1950s and 1960s crafted an anticolonial modernization project Rather than choose Cold War sides between East and West anticolonial nationalists worked to reverse the psychological and cultural destruction of colonialism Kwame Nkrumah's African Union was envisioned as a federation of liberation to challenge the extant imperial forces the US empire of liberty the Soviet empire of equality and the European empires of exploitation In the 1950s the goal of proving the potency of a pan African ideology shaped the agenda of the Bandung Conference and Ghana's support for African liberation while also determining what was at stake in the Congo crisis and in the fight against white minority rule in southern and eastern Africa In the 1960s the attempt to remake African psychology was abandoned and socioeconomic development came into focus Anticolonial nationalists did not simply resist or utilize imperial and Cold War pressures but drew strength from the example of the Haitian Revolution of 1791 in which Toussaint Louverture demanded the universal application of Europe's Enlightenment values The liberationists of the postwar period wanted to redesign society in the image of the revolution that had created them The Ideological Scramble for Africa demonstrates that the Cold War struggle between capitalism and Communism was only one of two ideological struggles that picked up speed after 1945 the battle between liberation and
