Morrow,2003-09-30 The beautiful game is big business Football leagues worldwide are being dominated by clubs who are becoming richer and more powerful Enormous corporate investment deals with media giants huge volumes of merchandising and dedicated TV channels mean that football teams are as concerned with the affairs of the boardroom as what is going on on the pitch In this dynamic new book Stephen Morrow examines the changing face of football looking at issues such as the role of the stock exchange the viability of the stakeholder approach the new economics of football including the role of media firms and the social impact of the sport Who Owns Football? David Hassan,Sean Hamil,2013-09-13 The commercialization of sport since the 1990s has had a number of consequences The market forces that have defined commercialization notably pay per view television whilst initially welcomed as important new sources of revenue have also had the unanticipated consequences of destabilizing many sporting competitions and institutions undermining the financial future of clubs in their traditional role as key social and cultural institutions This has been manifested in the paradox of chronic financial loss making amongst professional sports clubs in an era of exponential revenue growth a trend exemplified by the experience of Italy's Serie A and the English Premier League both cases examined in detail in this book But at the same time some traditional sporting organizations have sought with some success to chart a middle way retaining traditional sporting movement objectives whilst also embracing a form of commercialism The Gaelic Athletic Association in Ireland the supporter owned FC Barcelona football club and New Zealand rugby union offer illustrative examples of such strategies examined in detail This book explores the background to this clash of commercial and traditional sporting objectives and debates the consequences for wider sports governance This book was published as a special issue of Soccer and Society International Sports Economics Comparisons Rodney D.
