Managing To Make Organisations Work:

Making organisations work T. Owen, 2013-12-01 I have worked as a manager in a large industrial organisation for the last twenty years During that time I have seen the job of a manager change almost out of recognition in both complexity and difficulty For the last five of those years I have held a job which has been much concerned with the problems which managers face under these circumstances and I have been in the position to discuss these problems with people doing similar jobs in other large organisations who have in turn often asked me for advice on their problems The result has been to build up a general picture of the manager in large and complex industrial organisations and of those practices which will help him or her to be effective and those which will not I suspect that the picture which emerges is one which may have some validity for large and complex organisations in other spheres trade unions for instance or the civil service but I have no first hand evidence to show whether this is so or not It is a picture which is certainly not so relevant for small organisations These and I have had the pleasure of working in some from time to time have their own problems but they tend to be different ones

Managing and Developing New Forms of Work Organisation George Kanawaty, 1981 Managing successful programmes Great Britain. Office of Government Commerce, 2007-09-03 Combining rigour and flexibility MSP helps all organisations public sector and private large and small achieve successful outcomes from their programme management time and time again With change a pressing reality for all organisations successful programme management has never been more vital to success Organisations must respond as new processes or services are introduced supplier relationships alter and structures adapt to market forces or legislation At the same time all organisations strive to achieve excellence by improving practices offering better services preparing more effectively for the future and encouraging innovation But change always creates new challenges and risks Inevitably there will be interdependencies to manage and conflicting priorities to resolve as the organisation adapts not just to a new situation internally but to the constantly shifting world outside To enable organisations to manage their programmes successfully they need a structured framework that does two things It must acknowledge that every programme exists in its own context and demands unique interpretation At the same time it must be universally applicable MSP has been developed with these two priorities in mind Its framework allows users to consistently
