Migrant Workers In Pacific Asia:

Migrant Workers in Pacific Asia Yaw A. Debrah, 2018-12-07 The migration of workers to the high growth countries in Pacific Asia in the 1980s was a new phenomenon in these countries As such the host governments did not have in place adequate housing social security and legal protection but the tight controls following the financial crisis have pushed these issues to the back burner This volume discusses the debates and controversies surrounding this issue in Malaysia Taiwan Singapore South Korea Japan and China Migrant Workers in Pacific Asia ,2002 Migrant Workers in Pacific Asia Yaw A. Debrah, 2002 In an edited collection of writings the contributors to this volume consider a range of employment issues that affect migrant workers operating in Japan China Taiwan Singapore South Korea and Malaysia Special Issue: Migrant Workers in Pacific Asia Yaw A. Debrah, 2002 Migrant Workers and ASEAN Anisa Santoso, 2017-04-21 ASEAN The Association of Southeast Asian Nations has made slow progress in defining a regional policy for the protection of migrant workers This book examines the normative structures within the institutions at play at both state and regional level of ASEAN which influence the making of a migrant workers protection policy The author puts forward a novel alternative policy analysis tool the Two Level State and Regional Analysis that enables satisfactory explanation for policy making cases whereby normative institutional structures are involved and social policies are considered The author argues that the formulation of a working coherent migrant workers protection policy has not been achieved because of the presence of normative institutional structures with ideas unsupportive to the protection of migrant workers which results in a slow institutionalisation process Although the migrant workers in question are their citizens and migrant sending countries are supposed to have more supportive normative structures for workers protection the author finds that when examined closely institutions in both migrant sending and receiving countries tend to have normative structures that are against workers protection These arguments drive the analytical questions of the book to inquire about the forms of the normative structures involved and their influence in the relevant institutions A unique contribution to the study of ASEAN and migration in Southeast Asia this book will be of interest to academics in the field of Social Policy Migration Studies and Asian Studies in particular Southeast Asian Studies Migrant Workers In Japan Hiroshi Komai, 2012-10-12 First Published in 1995 The issue of foreign workers in Japan has already reached a turning point as they are quickly changing from a flow into a group of settled residents This change has been accompanied by a great deal of research in Japan but there have been precious few attempts to grasp the problem in a unified manner and this book based on the author's own field research represents such an attempt Labour Mobility in the Asia-Pacific Region Graeme Hugo, Soogil Young, 2008 Driven by demographic changes and reinforced by intensifying globalization international labour mobility has been on the rise in recent decades in the Asia Pacific region It seems that after trade and investment labour mobility constitutes the final frontier for regional integration among the Asia Pacific economies There is no doubt that labour movements are integral to regional economic integration and critical to the long term health of the regional economies and business operations In reality however such movements are much burdened with political and social problems in the labour origin economies as well as the labour destination economies and yet many of these problems remain not just unaddressed by the relevant governments but not even well studied The present volume seeks to fill this gap by offering synthesis papers stemming from the studies on international labour migration in twenty Asia Pacific economies which were discussed at a joint PECC ABAC conference held in Seoul Korea on 25 26 March 2008 organized by KOPEC These papers examine the demographic transition the associated pattern of international labour migration the national policies associated with it as well as their implications for business and the issues they raise and finally the implications of these analyses for cooperation among the APEC governments for each of the four subregions in the Asia Pacific as well as for the whole region

Budhwar, 2004-04-22 This book presents an HRM scenario in a number of South East Asian and Pacific Rim countries It highlights the growth of the personnel HR function the dominant HRM systems in the area the influence of different factors on HRM and the challenges faced by HR functions in these nations An excellent addition to this subject area each chapter has

International Migration and Development in East Asia and the Pacific Ahmad Ahsan, Manolo Abella, Andrew

Beath, Yukon Huang, Trang Van Nguyen, 2014-10-15 The East Asia and Pacific EAP region has an international emigrant population of more than 21 million people who remitted US 112 billion to their home countries in 2013 The region also hosts more than 7 million migrant workers mostly from other Asian countries These migrant workers account for 20 percent or more of the labor force in economies such as Malaysia and Singapore and thus play a significant role in the economies of the labor receiving countries An aging population in many East Asian countries will create significant labor shortages leading to greater demand for migrant workers For these reasons international labor mobility is emerging as an important development issue in East Asia with important implications for reducing poverty and supporting sustainable economic development in the region In this context International Migration and Development in East Asia and the Pacific analyzes the impact of migration on development of the EAP region and examines how international migration should be managed in East Asia in a way that supports development goals while simultaneously protecting the rights of migrants The study covers trends in international migration in East Asia and overarching regional issues such as the links between macroeconomic management and remittances and the role of demographic trends in migration the economic impact of migration and remittances on labor sending countries and labor receiving countries the migration industry and the policies and institutions that govern migration This report shows that in labor sending countries remittances help reduce poverty significantly by increasing income for migrants families At the country level remittances have a significant role in helping finance trade deficits and in bolstering reserves not only in the small Pacific Island economies but also in large economies such as Vietnam and the Philippines For labor receiving countries such as Malaysia Singapore and Hong Kong SAR China migrant workers form a significant part of the workforce especially in labor intensive manufacturing construction plantation agriculture fishing and household services Migrant workers thus help relieve labor shortages boost output and maintain competitiveness The role of migrant workers will become more important in the future given the rapid population aging in many labor receiving East Asian countries Given these factors the key question concerning international migration in East Asia and the Pacific is not whether it is desirable but how it should be managed in the future International Migration and Development in East Asia and the Pacific discusses a range of policy options in both labor sending and labor receiving countries to address this question

Critical security in the Asia-Pacific Anthony Burke, Matt McDonald, 2021-06-15 In the wake of 9 11 the Asian crisis and the 2004 tsunami traditional analytical frameworks are increasingly unable to explain how individuals and communities are rendered insecure or advance individual global or environmental security In the Asia Pacific the accepted wisdom of realism has meant that analyses rarely move beyond the statist militarist and exclusionary assumptions that underpin traditional realpolitik This innovative new book challenges these limitations and addresses the missing problems people and vulnerabilities of the Asia Pacific region It also turns a critical eye on traditional interstate strategic dynamics Critical security in the Asia Pacific applies both a critical theoretical approach that interrogates the deeper assumptions underpinning security discourses and a human centred policy approach that focuses on the security welfare and emancipation of individuals and communities Leading Asia Pacific researchers combine to apply these frameworks to the most pressing issues in the region from the Korean peninsula to environmental change Indonesian conflict the war on terror and the plight of refugees The result is a sophisticated and accessible account of often neglected realities of marginalization in the region and a compelling argument for the empowerment and security of the most vulnerable

Globalization and Labour in the Asia Pacific John Benson, Chris Rowley, 2018-12-07 Globalization and labour market deregulation have had an impact on employment and workers and brought pressure to bear on trade unions This study looks at the challenges of globalization and deregulation in the Asia Pacific and possible responses to them in a variety of ways

Labour in the Clothing Industry in the Asia Pacific Vicki Crinis, Adrian Vickers, 2016-11-25 The clothing industry provides employment for 60 million workers worldwide More than a quarter of these workers are employed in the Asia Pacific region where the industry is based on subcontracted production on behalf of international buyers Rapid movements of manufacturing activity from country to country in search of cost advantages make clothing workers part of a globalizing labour market where they increasingly suffer from job insecurity This book presents carefully researched case studies which highlight the ways in which labour is informalized fragmented and made disposable by the globalization of production Chapters address issues pertaining to rights and citizenship and new forms of activism and organization in conjunction and coordination with diverse support groups consumers and wider global campaigns Contributors further examine the role of the nation state government regulatory bodies as well as independent monitoring systems such as the International Labour Organization Although there has been considerable effort directed to understanding how firms operate across multiple countries in studies of the organization of global production networks and the implications for complexities of scale de territorialization and state development projects there has been far less focus on how these processes produce precarious labour and reshape worker consciousness Offering new insights into the understanding and support of workers in the global textile and garment industry this book will be of interest to academics in a variety of disciplines including Asian Studies sociology political economy development human rights labour and gender

Bangladeshi Migration to Singapore Md Mizanur Rahman, 2017-03-07 This book examines international labour migrants in the context of South South migration with a focus on Bangladeshi migration to Singapore Two principal questions in the South South migration are addressed Why and how individuals migrate for work and what impact this temporary form of migration has for migrants and their families The book adopts a relatively new methodological approach to labour migration by linking different phases that migrants undergo in the migration process and by combining migrants in the host country with their families in the origin country This is achieved through identifying and addressing six key areas i migration policy ii social imperatives of migration iii recruitment iv social worlds of the migrants v remittance process and finally vi family development dynamics This book introduces the bari to migration research as a unit of analysis over and above individual and family units The book reveals how social and cultural forces both initiate and perpetuate migration and later on influence bari dynamics
